GRAVE CRISIS FACES BOMBAY AUTHORITIES

RIOTING SPREADS TO HEART OF CITY

BARBARIC METHODS

Bombay, Yesterday.
The Police were called out on six occasions in the course of this morning to fire on rioters, looters and incendiaries, the latter being responsible for burning down a Hindu temple.
An idea of the ferocity of the clashes can be had from the fact that an injured and suffering boy of fourteen was first stabbed and then hacked to pieces.
Rioting has now spread to the heart of the city. Hindus masquerading as Moslems and vice versa, in order to exploit attacks and looting. Strictly orthodox Hindus and Moslems are dressed as Europeans in order to avoid attack, as those leaving their houses without this precaution are attacked by both factions. The milkmen have also come in for their share of attention for, clad only in a piece of loin-cloth, they fall an easy prey to the hooligans.
The stone-throwers have become very expert with their slings, reaching a longer range than the police with their revolvers. The attackers hide in the clearest fashion in houses and lanes, barely ten yards wide, causing the police to use decoys to draw out the rioters. The decoys are then showered with missiles, and the point from which they are thrown is then rushed by the Police, under shields three feet wide.—Reuter.

Stray Assaults And Stabbings

Bombay, earlier.

The night passed off without further organised violence, though a few cases of stray assaults and stabbings in remote by-lanes occurred. An exodus of the panic-stricken people in the affected areas began yesterday, the outgoing trains being over-crowded.
The casualties up to daybreak today were 21 killed and 175 injured.—Reuter.

PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

Candidates Increase Their Activities

GOVERNOR LANDON MAKES SURPRISE MOVE

New York, Yesterday.
With the approach of the date of the Presidential election the activities of the candidates are increasing.
President Roosevelt was returning to New York State after a tour of 5,000 miles from Denver to Detroit when Governor Alfred Landon, who was returning to Kansas, made a surprise move by suddenly announcing his decision to dash into California, which State he told pressmen, he expected to carry. Mr. Alfred Smith has arranged to confer with Governor Landon when the latter comes to New York City at the end of the month for his final big speech in his campaign.
The Socialist candidate, Mr. Norman Thomas, predicts the election of President Roosevelt, "not because I wish it, but because the people are going to vote for him." Mr. Thomas appeals for a large Socialist vote as a flag of warning to Mr. Roosevelt.—Reuter.

DICTATORSHIP FOR BELGIUM?

IMPORTANT SCOPE OF PROPOSED BILL

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE TO BE MODIFIED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Brussels, Yesterday.

The Belgian Cabinet yesterday afternoon decided to convene Parliament in an extraordinary session in order to discuss the proposed military reforms. This session will probably be opened on October 27, and it is thought likely that it will be prolonged until the ordinary session begins in the month of November.
In the same Cabinet Council the first measures to be taken by the Government against the opposition bloc formed by the Rexist and Flemish Nationalists were approved. As a counterblast to the threat of the Rexist leader, M. de Grolla, that all the Deputies belonging to the bloc will resign immediately Parliament reassembles in case the Minister of Transport, M. Jaspar, is not previously retired from the Cabinet, the Minister of Interior laid before his colleagues the text of a Bill modifying the existing Parliamentary procedure.

Under the present regulations a by-election must automatically follow a resignation, whereas the new Bill provides that in future the Chamber itself shall decide in each case whether a by-election shall be held. In this way it would be possible for the Chamber to disenfranchise any constituency whose representative resigned without reasonable cause. The Government will present the Bill to the Chamber at the beginning of the next session and demand its immediate discussion.

REXIST MOVEMENT CRITICISED
Addressing a meeting here yesterday evening a former Minister severely criticised the Rexist movement and declared that the Government would itself lead the Opposition to agitate for the setting up of a dictatorship in Belgium. Referring to King Leopold's recent speech the speaker emphasised that the Belgian nation's determination not to allow their country to serve as a base for the military operations of foreign Powers constitutes a definite contribution to the cause of European peace.—Trans-Ocean Service.

BRITISH OFFICER WOUNDED

Arab Tribesmen Are Active Again

Jerusalem, Yesterday.
After a few days of quiet, Arab attacks started again when two patrols of the Buffs were fired on by Arab tribesmen near Akko.
Later, reinforcements in lorries came up and chased the tribesmen for over a mile. It is understood that three Arabs were killed, while one officer and one private were slightly wounded.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

ANY COMPLAINTS?

Pay Too Small And Not Enough Food!

London, Yesterday.

A new experiment in recruiting for the British Army is now being tried out. Eighty youths are enlisted and will serve for six months in the British Army, after which if they do not like to continue to serve they will have the liberty to leave.

The experiment has been going on for six weeks now and up to the present there have only been two grouse, one saying that the Army pay is not sufficient, while the other complains that there is not enough food.—Reuter's Bulletin Service.

Passive Anti-Aircraft Resistance Fiasco

Paris, Yesterday.—The first full dress rehearsal of the "passive anti-aircraft resistance," planned for last night, turned out to be a complete fiasco owing to the failure of the population to comply with the instructions issued by the police.

The plan was that the whole town should be in complete darkness, but many Parisians took the matter more or less as a joke and paraded the streets, singing in groups.

In the Latin quarter the students seized the opportunity to make practical jokes and demon-

MARXIST PLANES SHOT DOWN

NATIONALISTS MAKING GOOD HEADWAY

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL

Burgos, Yesterday. — A number of Marxist aeroplanes are reported to have been shot down in the course of yesterday's fighting, three near Talavera de la Reina, two on the Cordoba front and one at Malaga. The Nationalist forces are stated to be making good headway on both the Aragon and Toledo fronts, although no important actions took place.

INTERVENTION IN SPAIN

WARNING SOUNDED IN POLAND

LENIN'S THESIS RECALLED

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Warsaw, Yesterday.

A serious warning about the danger of misinterpreting the significance of the Soviet-Russian procedure with regard to the Non-Intervention Committee, is given here by the semi-official Gazeta Polska, which declares that criticism of the Russian action seems to leave out of account the possibility that Moscow should really abandon its neutrality and interfere in Spain.

This possibility, declares the paper, by no means belongs to the realm of fantasy, and derives its reality from M. Lenin's thesis of the possibility of war and revolution, published as far back as 1920.

INSURGENT ADVANCE ON ALL FRONTS

Feverish Anxiety In Capital

TRENCHES DUG; BUILDINGS TURNED INTO FORTS

London, Yesterday.

The insurgent armies investing Madrid are reported to be making progress, with the Government forces retreating on a 35-mile front. The fall of Naval Carnero, the last bastion of Madrid's outer defences, is expected hourly, as General Varela's column is only five miles from the town which, despite its strong fortifications, is not expected to be able to resist the onslaught of the more experienced and better led Nationalist troops.

The capture of Naval Carnero will be the first step in the advance towards Madrid from the west, while it will also assist to open up the attack on the capital from the north-west.

The capture of Valmojado, the last village before Naval Carnero, was carried out under the personal supervision of General Varela. Insurgent troops left Santa Cruz de Retamar at dawn, protected on both flanks by insurgent columns under Colonel Yague and General Arenal.

SEIZURE OF MORE PROVINCES?

SITUATION IN NORTH CHINA OUTLINED

LAND PURCHASE IN TIENTSIN

(By A Special Correspondent)

Canton, Yesterday.

The Japanese military authorities have turned their eyes to North China, and the foreign aggression in northern provinces has reached the critical stage. In order to solve this difficult problem, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has summoned the military officials of those provinces to Hangchow so that he can instruct them on how to defend their respective provinces.

General Han Fu-chu, Chairman of the Shantung Provincial Government; General Chu Weng-chang, representative of General Yen Sik-sen, Pacification Commissioner for Shansi Province; General Fu Chai-ye, Chairman of Suiyuan Province, and Mr. Kuo Ting-yuan, representative of General Sung Chi-yuan, Chairman of the Hopen-Chahar Political Council, arrived at Hangchow to interview the Generalissimo yesterday. Marshal Chang Hsueh-ling and General Yang Fu-sung, Pacification Commissioner of Shensi Province, are coming to Hangchow to-day to ask for the Generalissimo's instructions for the same purpose.

Besides, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek will preside at Hangchow over the national defence conference for the 10 provinces of Shantung, Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhwei, Szechuen, Hopen, Hunan, Honan, Fukien and Kiangsi, and the military authorities of these 10 provinces have received notifications from the Generalissimo.

As for the actual Japanese military activities in North China, it is reported.

(1) That the officials of the Japanese Kwangtung Army and the Japanese Troops in North China held a joint meeting at Tientsin yesterday to exchange views with regard to their North China scheme;

(2) Marshal Chang Hsueh-ling has been asked to co-operate to suppress the Communists with the Japanese troops in Shensi Province;

(3) Up-to-date weapons, tanks, armoured-cars and machine-guns have been transported from Jehol to the Manchukuo Commander Li Sau-suen and the Bandit Commander Wang Ying at the frontier of Suiyuan, with the intention of capturing Suiyuan and Shansi Provinces;

(4) The number of Consular police at Tientsin has been increased. The Japanese authorities have the idea of establishing police stations in Chinwangtao, the winter port of Tientsin, Shanhaikwan, the gateway separating Hopen Province and Manchuria, Kalgan, the frontier station between Hopen and Chahar Provinces, and a number of other important places. Besides, they have already established a police station in Fengtai, and 20 Japanese policemen have entered upon their duties there;

(5) The Japanese have bought 300,000 mow of land in Tientsin, next to the Japanese Cemetery there, as locations for military camps;

(6) On the 25th instant, the Japanese troops in North China will undertake large-scale manoeuvres around Tientsin and Peiping. This field exercise will last 10 days. In other words, the Japanese military authorities appear to have the intention of capturing the North China Provinces, as they have already done to Manchuria and Jehol.

SHANGHAI SITUATION

With regard to the Shanghai situation, the feeling has become less tense, but the Japanese marines are still patrolling North Szechuen Road and neighbouring places. At 4 p.m. yesterday about 600 Japanese blue-jackets manœuvred at Yangshupu, and their drill lasted about two hours. It is learned that Cantonese merchants at Shanghai are returning to the South for fear that hostilities may break out. Mr. Wu Teh-chen.

CONFERENCES AT HANGCHOW

FULL SUPPORT FOR GENERALISSIMO

"NATIONAL ISSUE MUST BE SETTLED NATIONALLY"

Shanghai, Yesterday.
Conferences likely to affect virtually the future of North China, are proceeding in Hangchow between Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and various Northern leaders representing the five provinces involved in Japan's so-called autonomy scheme.

Following closely on the heels of General Han Fu-chu, General Yang Hu-cheng, Pacification Officer of Shensi, and Hsu Yung-chang, former governor of Shansi, who is representing Yen Hsi-shan, Pacification Commissioner of Shensi and Sui Yung, arrived in Hangchow yesterday.

Keh Ting-yuan, Secretary-General of the Hopen-Chahar Political Council, is also at present in Hangchow. The Northern leaders were warmly welcomed by General Huang Shao-hsiung, Governor of Chekiang, and they conferred with the Generalissimo in the evening.

Full support for the Central Government in its present efforts to preserve the sovereignty and territorial integrity of China was pledged. General Han Fu-chu, interviewed by the Chinese press, said that "China cannot afford internal divisions in the present crisis."

The Governor of Shantung said that the "foreign problems facing the Government comprise a national issue which must be settled nationally."—Reuter.

THE BLONDE FROM NEW YORK

SHORT STORY

By ELMER DAVIS

AS the blonde from New York crossed the hotel veranda, the click of knitting-needles and creak of rocking-chairs died away to silence; descending the steps, she could feel a dozen pairs of eyes on her back. She sauntered toward her cottage in the gathering dusk—reminding herself, as she went, not to walk too fast or too slowly, not to let her poised seem a defiant swagger. She knew what those old hens on the veranda thought of her, and she wasn't going to let them think they had got under her skin.

What they thought of her was what they would have thought of any girl, in that autumn of 1920, who wore bobbed hair, and rolled her stockings below her knees, and smoked cigarettes, and swam (not at the hotel beach, to be sure, but in front of her cottage where everybody could see her) in a one-piece suit, with her legs bare. Such things were not done in those days, at Midwestern lake resorts. But beyond all that, she knew that they were thinking with a tight-lipped satisfaction that she'd have her time to herself, now that Burlington Parry's wife had come back.

As she would, Iris Parry demanded all her husband's attention; and she must have heard already from a dozen women that while she was away, he had played tennis daily with that Norette girl from New York; that twice, after supper at the hotel, he had walked back to her cottage with her and had sat on her porch, talking. . . . She hadn't wanted him to walk home with her, but he had seemed to feel, then, that the ostentatious gesture was proof of innocence. Not that those women on the veranda would ever believe it was innocent. Nasty-minded old hags, thought Frieda Norette viciously—and the difficulty was, they were right. They were right; and she, the smart metropolitan newspaper woman who knew what it was all about, had been ludicrously and disastrously wrong.

She lit a cigarette, tossed her match into the unrippled lake beside the path. It lay smooth in the still evening, reflecting the stars; far out, a wooded islet was a barely perceptible blur. The first time she had ever swum out to that islet at night was the last time Burl Parry had walked home with her—night before last. She had sent him away, finally; he wanted to stay and talk, but her nerves had had as much as they could stand. An hour of solitary meditation only redoubled her unrest; she needed action, exercise, exhaustion. She had slipped into her bathing-suit, swum far out, turned aside to rest on the islet—and found him there.

He couldn't have seen her start; it was pitch dark, and his cottage was half a mile away, on the other side of the hotel. Instantly she had known that he must have been driven by the same impulse that had driven her, and she wasn't afraid to give it a name. Desire, they had called it that night, and had talked it over with a cool maturity of which they were immensely proud, and had decided that it would be silly to do anything about it. . . . Not a word was said about another meeting; but last night they had swum out again, separately driven by a mutual impulse, and met on the islet. That time they called it love; but still they hadn't done anything about it. For nothing could come of it: she had a job, and a future, in New York; and he came from Hendersonville, belonged in Hendersonville, had a wife who was all the Hendersonvilles incarnate. A wife to whom, he had told her, he had never been and intended never to be unfaithful.

"But he'd have been forgetful of her last night," she reflected, "if I had let him." She had wanted to let him, with a hunger that had amazed and terrified her; even if nothing could come of it, it would have been something to remember, all their lives. But it might have hurt him; he might never have felt the same again about his wife, the wife with whom he was going to live his life out in Hendersonville. And also—Frieda Norette, who had been proud of being as hard-balled as any male reporter on Park Row, had been a little ashamed of herself for falling so hard for a handsome hick. Just because he had nice eyes and wavy brown hair, and a flashing smile. . . .

She stood still in the dark beside her porch steps, shivering with thoughts that no man had ever made her feel before. And he wasn't hick; it wasn't his fault that he had been born in Hendersonville and had gone to a small college; he had a better mind than hers, even if he hadn't read as widely. New York would polish him; and if he had the right woman—But apparently you didn't admit, in Hendersonville, that you had the wrong woman; and what would he do in New York? Some day he'd be mayor of Hendersonville, and then judge. . . . And last night she had let something go by that they'd have remembered all their lives. If ever again they swam to the islet—But they never would; his wife had come back—two days before she was expected. One of those veranda women must have written to her. And a girl who had come out here to write the play that would make her famous, had better get back to work. "You're just going to settle down here and read?" Iris Parry demanded.

"Why not, if you're going up to the hotel to play bridge?" She stood over his chair—tall, almost too slender; her dark eyes in a pallid face were murky with suspicion. He wondered if she thought he meant to slip away and see Frieda; she ought to know that he couldn't walk down to her cottage without being seen by the women on the hotel veranda. . . . She was close beside him; he was conscious of the scent she wore; with agonized intensity, he hoped she wouldn't touch him. Not yet.

"You could come up and watch us," she said. "You'd learn the game. It's silly of you not to play bridge." "No more than for you not to play tennis, when you don't like it." "I guess you don't need me to play tennis with you." Her voice was stony. "From what I hear."

"Oh, from heaven's sake! Those old hens on the hotel veranda—" "Who taught you to call them old hens? They're—there're decent women. It isn't my fault," she said. "That I had weak lungs when I was growing up, and wasn't allowed to play tennis. And I had to go home to look after my children."

"And it isn't my fault," he countered doggedly, "that Frieda Norette plays a better game of tennis than any of the men around here. I play a good enough game myself to appreciate somebody who can give me a work-out. No harm in that, is there?" (But if she only knew—)

"I hope not." There was a pause. "I suppose," she said, "you're sore because I make a date to play bridge the first evening I was back." Another pause; suddenly he realized that she was waiting for him to ask her to break the date and stay with him, that she might have made it only to get him to ask her to stay; and he couldn't ask her to stay; not yet.

"But I'll be home early," she promised. For an instant her eyes softened; they were eager and wistful and bewildered, but uncompromising—the eyes of the girl he had married three years ago, just before he went to the officers' training-camp. And that look, above all others, he couldn't face now. He turned back to his book, thankful that he hadn't told her about that letter in his pocket; but when she had gone, he sat staring at nothing, the book disregarded in his lap.

"War Speeds Romance," the Hendersonville Register had headlined their wedding. He supposed they might have married eventually, war or no war; but already he had been restless in Hendersonville—had talked of getting into a law firm in the State capital; and Iris had no patience with that. But a blazing blend of love and patriotism and excitement swept them together. A week's honeymoon in Chicago, the awkward honey-moon of the inexperienced young; then they were parted for the three months, to wonder separately if perhaps they hadn't been in too big a hurry. Then a few days' leave when he came home with his commission—the best time they had ever had together; and then off to drill conscripts at a camp only seventy miles away; she could come down and spend weekends with him till he went overseas.

But he never went overseas; he spent the wartime drilling conscripts, with his wife coming down for weekends. That camp had done it, he reflected, never realizing that this was the first time he had admitted to himself that it had been done. Together from the beginning, he and Iris might have got used to each other's ideas; or if he had gone overseas—The three or four men from Hendersonville who had been in action were obscurely changed; their wives might have found it hard to get reacquainted when they came home, but at least they had realized that it was worth while to take the trouble. But why take the trouble to get acquainted with a husband returned from the inglorious routine of a training-camp? So he made him more precious than ever; the least he could do would be to move to the capital and find out what he was good for. But you couldn't stir Iris out of Hendersonville; with her friends and a handsome husband, and the car that she drove so skillfully, what more could any man want, she seemed to feel, who had her?

"It's not fair," he told himself, "to blame her for it." But it was no longer a question of blame; the question was what he—what they both—wanted, what they needed. And he knew what he needed, now that he had met a woman whose mind was fearless and untrammelled. "What I like about you," he had once told Frieda, "is your utter honesty. That's what I want." But what he wanted now was all of her. And he could have won her—

He stood up jerkily. Last night anything could have been, for all her hesitations; but he had held back. Nothing could have come of it—then. But this letter—He had felt, too, that somehow it might hurt Iris, even if she ever knew about it; he didn't want to hurt either of them—and he was hurting them both, not to mention himself.

"Damn!" he thought. "Action is what I need. Five sets of tennis, with Frieda—" But you couldn't play tennis in the dark, and he might never play with Frieda again; it wasn't worth kicking up a domestic row over tennis. Swimming, hard swimming, might quiet his nerves. . . . He had his bathing-suit on before it occurred to him how easily he could swim out beyond the range of the hotel lights, and circle back in the lake to Frieda's cottage. But if he ever went to see her again, he'd go in the open, and be damned to those women on the veranda! Anyway, they had said good-bye. Frieda, at the moment, was bending over a typewriter in the circle of lamplight on her table—the play that she had written in a hot glow, and was reading over with cool detachment, as if it were somebody else's play. The warm night was heavily silent; a year ago, passing through here on a motor holiday, she had noted this as the haven of perfect peace where she could come to do her writing—and what a lot of peace she was having! Resolutely she turned back to the typewriter, read it through to the end; then she leaned back in her chair, lit a cigarette.

"Tripe," she said aloud. "To hell with it!" Burl would be shocked if he heard that; the women he knew didn't swear. He didn't know that her toughness had been put on as an armour that she needed on her first job, when she was only a scared little girl just out of Bryn Mawr, shocked at the things reporters had to do. She needed that armour still, for her play was tripe. Naturally; how could she write anything decent when she was so torn to pieces? But she rejected that easy excuse; this would have been tripe, even if she had never met Burl Parry. Her ideas were good enough, but she couldn't write. News stories, yes; but nothing more.

She picked up the typewritten sheets, a handful at a time; tore them to bits, flung the bits into the fireplace, lit them and watched them burn. There went her future. She still had her job, but a newspaper woman's job wasn't so much; male reporters might rise to become executives, but a girl reporter, by and large, had only two exits—she could write or she could get married. Frieda Norette couldn't write; and as for getting married—

All at once she began to shudder in spasms; she couldn't cry—she didn't want to cry; she wanted to screech and yell like a lone cat. Furious, she strode up and down the

OUR PARIS LETTER

SHOES NOW IMPORTANT AS HATS

THERE is more of a shine story revolving around shoes than most of us will remember, ever. Shoes have completely emerged from the cocoon of conservatism and their character of being just something to wear with costumes. They've become an integral part of each and every costume to be chosen. They are every bit as important as hats, and the choice or mischoice of a pair of shoes can completely make or unmake the success of any ensemble.

The first news about shoes is their newness of shape. Shoes, like hats, are trending upward. Some of the smartest fit up about the ankle, with the most extreme version of this trend being expressed in the bootillon, or very short, very chic boot, which will be seen as the season progresses. Pumps, oxfords and strap shoes all have this up hugging of the ankle line, which is flattering and youthful.

The height of heels is more or less a matter of taste, but it's definite that more and more women are wearing the lower heeled, casual shoe for daytime, and it's available in oxfords, sandals, sports or tailored afternoon shoes. Then square toed and heeled shoes which were introduced in the spring are still excellent to wear with shorter skirted, flaring sports things or tailored. Slide fastenings, including bandings and buttons, are very good. Contrasts in leathers are excellent and in keeping with the whole mood for contrast. Suedes are top fashion, and suede enlivened with a touch of another leather are even better.

The detailing of shoes, the trim, the last, the subtle fit, those things are essential to your chic. As for the colour of shoes, coloured shoes are definitely in the highest favour; deep wines and greens and purples are the favourite hues, with black shoes of course the leaders. Browns, a slaty shade of gray and navy are very smart but the choice of a shoe colour alone is not what counts, it's the shoe colour, plus the colour of the rest of your costume which determines smartness.

With these new shoes come bags of infinite chic. Bags which subtly combine the two leather materials, bags which match the shoes in colour and texture, but not always exactly. Because even to match identically in that respect isn't quite as subtle as to let the bag match in all the essentials but still flaunt some quirk of its own. The sizes of bags vary, from the very large, squareish bag which is very smart, to the smaller more folded affair which hangs from a glittering shell handle. Some women will always prefer the envelope bag, and for them, it is still chic. Bags shouldn't be passed over lightly either; the wrong bag can work havoc on the most artful costume, and the details of it should bear the closest scrutiny.

IT IS DONE LIKE THIS

- 2 cups SIMPSON'S Self-Raising Flour
1/2 teaspoon salt, milk to mix
4 ozs. almonds, blanched and finely chopped
1 cup "ROYAL BLUE" Seeded Raisins
1 cup brown sugar, juice of half 2 large cooking apples peeled and finely chopped
Lemon

Mix the flour and salt into a basin. Add sufficient milk to make a thick smooth dough. Turn on to a floured board, knead for a few minutes. Cut into pieces and roll each piece into a thin sheet large enough to fit into an 8-inch deep cake pan. Grease the pan with melted butter, place a layer of the paste in the pan and brush over with melted butter. Repeat this until all the paste is used, and cover with another layer of the paste. Brush top layer over with melted butter, sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a moderately hot oven about 45 minutes. Serve hot with Custard Sauce.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY SECRETS

(By Max Factor — Make-Up Genius)

Face-Lifting With Make-Up

Haven't you seen women whose faces seem to droop? Their mouths sag at the corners, their cheeks hang limply, their eyes look weary. In fact, their faces constantly bear an expression of complete fatigue.

Even in youth, face muscles are apt to weaken and become flabby. Then, too, sometimes this weakening is localised in one feature like the mouth or the lower eyelid.

What is the proper procedure to correct a drooping mouth? First of all, when powdering the face the mouth should be held open in such a way that the corners are stretched taut. Thus, they will receive a smooth, even application of the face powder. They, in applying the lipstick, the corners of the lower lip should be coloured to extend beyond those of the upper lip. The reason for this is obvious. The drooping effect is caused by the corners of the upper lip overhanging the lower lip.

powder and rouge are artfully applied over the foundation, maximum concealment will be reached. Since rouge acts as a shadow, it should be used to subtly subdue the fuller parts of the cheek. Soft, deft blending will create the desired illusion. A feathery over-all dusting of face powder will add material enhancement.

Now we come to the so-called "windows of the soul." Tired, disconsolate eyes are usually caused by a creepy drooping of the lower lids. Dark circles under the eyes are usually an accompanying condition. If an increase in the hours of sleeping doesn't chase away these circles, they should be lightened with a bleach mask. The muscles around the eyes should also be built up through the use of nourishing cream.

In making up the eyes, here's a trick that will help to uplift them. They can be faintly outlined at the base of the lashes with an eyebrow pencil. This line can then be extended beyond the outer corner of the eye with Max Factor explains a new technique in make-up which gives the face a fresh, uplifted expression.

Therefore, if we shorten the upper lip we prevent it from overhanging.

Before putting on the lipstick, however, the lines around the mouth should be cleared of surplus face powder. It is important that all the tiny "pulled-down" lines around the mouth be thoroughly powdered and then stroked clear with the face powder brush. Spreading these lines with the fingers will allow the powder to get down into them and thus effectively hide them. When the lipstick is applied it should be done very sparingly, in order to avoid too great a prominence on the part of the mouth.

Sagging cheeks, unfortunately, present a problem that is difficult for make-up alone to surmount. This is a clear case of muscular weakness, and in extreme instances, its effects cannot be satisfactorily concealed. General treatments for toning the muscles and skin of the face should be employed. The moderate use of ice, for example, is excellent for stimulating and hardening the face muscles. Frequent applications of cold towels is another good treatment along the same idea. These treatments should be preceded by a five-minute session with a good skin nourishing cream. In applying this cream, the face muscles should not be tugged or pulled. The cream should be patted into the skin with a light, brisk slapping motion. Any pulling of the face — whether upwards or down — tends to stretch and weaken the muscles. After the face has been stroked and tugged upwards, there is nothing to keep it that way. However, the intelligent use of skin and tissue cream will tend to build up and strengthen facial muscles.

The use of a good foundation cream will also help to conceal sagging cheek muscles. If the slightly upward stroke. Eyebrows, too, should be drawn with a slight uplift.

EASTERN REGISTER FIRST WIN

Saints Beaten By Odd Goal

TEMPERS BECOME FRAYED

At Causeway Bay yesterday Eastern secured their first win of the season when they defeated St. Joseph's by the odd goal in five.

Play was interesting on the whole, being more of a Cup-tie nature than a normal League encounter. Towards the close frayed tempers tended to mar the game, the outstanding features of which were the play of Costa and the neat sweeping movements of the Eastern forwards.

St. Joseph's were disappointing. That dash and flash which has been so prominent in their attack of late was entirely absent. Of the defence, little can be said, save that it provided Costa, who eventually moved up to replace Hussain at centre-half, with an opportunity to further his claims to import honours.

The intermediate line with the exception of Elms, who had a busy time with Chong Shui-hong, was not impressive. Hussain finding the activities of Song Hing-ling, little to his liking.

Amongst the forwards Leonard was disappointing, while, for some reason difficult to understand, the noted Castilho-Delgado combination failed entirely. Leonard was unlucky in front of goal, but a little more assistance from his right would undoubtedly have altered the result.

George Yeung Prominent

On the Eastern side George Yeung, at centre-half, was prominent, his skill in distribution paving the way for both Chong Shui-hong and Song Hing-ling, and was responsible in no small part for Eastern's success, his coolness and anticipation defying Leonard and Ward on almost every occasion. Amongst the forwards Chong Shui-hong and Song Hing-ling caught the eye, the latter's reaction to the distribution of George Yeung producing two fine goals.

Despite determined efforts on both sides the interval arrived without any score being recorded.

Eastern quickly settled down after the resumption and netted their first goal through Song Hing-ling, but the Saints equalised from a penalty converted by Costa.

Eastern then made several lightning raids which eventually bore fruit when a neat movement by Ng Ying-kee and Chong Shui-hong ended in the latter netting. St. Joseph's, however, equalised again as the result of a penalty converted by Costa.

The game entered the closing stages with both sides striving hard for the winning goal. At this juncture, frayed tempers made it necessary for the referee to caution two players. The winning goal fell to Eastern five minutes from the close when Song Hing-ling netted.

Eastern: Tang Yai-ming; Tsang Kam-ming; Lai Ting-choi; Tsang Cheung-wan; George Yeung; Ng Ying-kee; Chan Sing-to; Chan Shui-hong; Song Hing-ling; Li Wing-on; Li Ping-tong.

St. Joseph's: Marques; Souza; Costa; Q. M. Omar; Hussain; Elms; Castilho; Delgado; Leonard; Ward; Fernando.

Second Division

SOUTH CHINA WIN

Playing enterprising football, South China beat the Club in a Second Division encounter at Caroline Hill yesterday by three clear goals.

Showing more method and better combination throughout, South China always looked convincing and well deserved their success, and, but for the stubborn resistance of Fogwell, Nicholls and Walkden they would have had an even greater total. Mok Yim-san and Wong King-chung formed a fine left flank, the young winger displaying many fine touches and assisting with accuracy and power.

Nicholls, Walkden and Shaw were the pick of the Club eleven and Fogwell displayed rare anticipation in disposing of the powerful drives of the South China attack.

South China led by two goals at the interval, Mok Yim-san being the successful marksman, and they might have been three up had they chance.

BOWEN & EVEREST AT THEIR BEST

BUT KOWLOON BOW TO FUSILIERS

TAYLOR'S LAST-MINUTE DECIDER

A GOAL in the last minute of the game earned the Fusiliers both points at Sookunpoo yesterday when Kowloon provided the opposition in the premier league, but the score was no guide to the run of play nor the quality of the football witnessed. The game was merely a duel between the Fusilier forwards and the opposing full-backs and goalkeeper. Twice Minhinnet pulled the game out of the fire for Kowloon when the scores were even by bringing off grand saves from the whizzing drives of Parry.

The Fusiliers were dogged by ill fortune throughout the game and there was an added blow shortly after the change of game, when Greysty was forced to retire from the field for the remainder of the match as a result of an injury sustained in collision with an opposing defender. Talbot fell back to assist the defence, but the soldiers still penned Kowloon in their own half.

Rowlands out of his goal before sending the ball into the net. Despite repeated onslaughts on Minhinnet's charge by the Fusiliers, Kowloon grimly clung to their one goal lead until half-time. The brilliant opportunism of Evans and his colleagues prior to the interval should have resulted in at least three goals but the fates were against the Fusiliers and it was only after 10 minutes play in the second half that they equalised the scores, Talbot seizing upon a clever pass during his one unmarked moment to give Minhinnet no chance with a shot which went to its mark like a bullet. The rest of the game can be summed up as a scramble on the part of Kowloon to keep the scores level, but this was not to be, as, almost with the last kick of the match, Taylor snapped up a centre from Parry to smash in a perfect shot.

Fusiliers: — Rowlands; Wheeler; Keating; Wanklyn; Greysty; Taylor; Parry; Dennis; Evans; Talbot; Hughes.

Kowloon: — Minhinnet; Everest; Bowen; Roberts; Sinclair; Connor; Eastman; Evans; D. Knox; V. White; Honnibal.

EASTERN RALLY

The Lyemun team have yet to record their first win of the season—they shared four goals with Eastern in their Second Division encounter at Causeway Bay yesterday.

The play was noteworthy for the good defences of both sides, Mackrill in particular playing a very sound game for the Gunners. The shooting of both sets of forwards was erratic and indiscriminate, many opportunities being thrown away by lack of direction in shooting.

The soldiers secured their first goal through a penalty converted by Knight, and they increased their lead just before the close of the first half through Brown.

Eastern commenced the second half in no uncertain style, Han Sing-to seizing the opportunity to net from a nice pass by Lai Wai-lam, and the equaliser arriving from a quick breakaway after an exciting five minutes in the Eastern goalmouth. Pan Shui-on scoring with a feeble shot which passed out of Mackrill's reach.

KOWLOON ROUTED

At Sookunpoo the Fusiliers succeeded in taking the points from the Kowloon second eleven by the wide margin of 7 goals to nil.

The Fusiliers settled down early and scored through Bumster, Sullivan, from a penalty, and Coakley in the first half. After the interval Harrison, Coakley, Sullivan and Harrison brought the Fusiliers' total to seven.

GUNNERS BEATEN

Even though they enjoyed more than their fair share of the excitement R. A. Stonecutters had to acknowledge defeat to Chinese Athletic by 3 goals to 2 in their Second Division match at Chatham Road yesterday afternoon.

The Gunners opened the scoring through Finley, but the Athletic rolled with two quick goals of the gift variety from free kicks taken by In Pook-yuen who centred the ball on each occasion for Woo In-king and Ip Ki-wing to score from underneath the crossbar. The Athletic went further ahead in the second half when Woo In-king took the ball and down the wing and placed it neatly for Lau Wing-kwong to beat Hall easily. Although the Gunners attacked furiously they could only tacked score once again, when a successful marksman, and understanding gave Baylor an easy chance.

REAL CUP-TIE SPIRIT PREVAILS

GOSANO & ALVES HOLD UP CHINESE ATTACK

ERRATIC SHOOTING NEAR GOAL

THERE could not have been a single spectator who was not thrilled by the exciting soccer entertainment offered by Recreio and the Athletic on the Kowloon ground yesterday.

Following real Cup-tie football, the premier league soccer clash resulted in the sharing of the spoils, and quite deservedly, each side scoring once.

A peculiarity throughout, though in no way detracting from the excitement, was the poor shooting by the forward lines of the both teams. It was in direct contrast to the remainder of the game, which brought out those finer points of constructive football. Excitement reached the climax and then the finishing failed miserably!

Recreio were remarkably quick to settle down and a good understanding between the halves and forwards almost brought about an early opening, but Campos shot wide and lost the opportunity. During the first quarter of an hour the Athletic attackers were equally eager, but they lacked cohesion and at times were prone to bad positioning. This, however, soon righted itself. At half time there was no score by either side.

The second half proved just as gruelling as the first had been and actually produced an improvement in the shooting, especially by the Athletic forwards, Lee Tak-kee, Wo Hon-lam and Chin Chi-fun providing a bad ten minutes for Demee in the Recreio goal.

Recreio, however, returned to the attack with a vengeance and Beltrao opened the scoring. With only a quarter of an hour to go and a goal behind, the Athletic once more redoubled their efforts and Lee Tak-kee equalised.

The defence of both teams must be commended on a very fine performance, for it was mainly due to their efforts that produced such a dearth in goals. A. V. Gosano and J. Alves were particularly

Third Division

TWO FOR SINGLETON

Although outplaying the Chinese Police for long periods of the game, the Fusiliers only emerged victors by the small margin of two goals to nil in their Third Division soccer encounter at Chatham Road yesterday.

After about five minutes play in the second period, a weak clearance by Mak Yut-fat left the ball at Singleton's feet at five yards range, and he made no mistake. Shortly afterwards Au Wing slipped in advancing from his goal to clear, the ball rolling to Singleton, who made sure of the issue by scoring a second gift goal.

EAST LANC'S WIN

A very keenly fought game in the Third Division saw the East Lancashire Regiment beat the European Police on the Kowloon ground by 5 goals to 1.

Ratcliffe, at left wing (and during the second half in the centre-forward position) was the outstanding player, being responsible for three of the soldiers' five goals.

The first goal went to Ratcliffe and the Police equalised through Willerton. The second half, however, saw the soldiers in complete control and goals came from Ratcliffe (2) Lawless, and Crossley.

KWONG WAH TRIUMPH

On St. Joseph's ground, Happy Valley, the Medicals were defeated by Kwong Wah in their Third Division fixture by two goals to nil.

After 25 minutes of fast and delightful football L. Rocha headed in a perfect pass from Leung King-kam on the wing—these two players were outstanding in a well balanced team. Shortly after the interval Rocha again scored.

ENGINEERS SURPRISED

In their Third Division encounter at King's Park, Liga Portuguesa, after a hard and exciting game, defeated the Engineers by 2 goals to 2.

C. Santos, the Liga centre-forward, played a remarkable game, scoring all three goals for his side, but in the second half of the game he was so closely watched that his untiring efforts proved of no avail.

During a scramble in front of the Liga goalmouth, Taylor easily beat Quinn to reduce the lead and during the latter stages of the game Parker sent in a low shot which Quinn failed to hold.

RECREIO FALTER

Recreio suffered an unexpected defeat after a brilliant and hard fought game in their Third Division football encounter against the Air Force at King's Park yesterday, the Air Force winning by the odd goal in five.

Pereira opened the scoring in the first few minutes of the game, and, encouraged by this success, the Recreio attacked with renewed vigour, resulting in Pereira again beating the Air Force custodian. Prior to the interval, however, a well-placed kick by Elton gave Everson the opportunity to reduce the arrears with a header.

The second half opened with Macgregor scoring, the equaliser after a poor attempt to recover by the Recreio half-backs, and Solis sent the Air Force ahead with a long-range shot towards the end.

CLUB FAIL IN BATTLE WITH LUCK

South China Win By Odd Goal

WINNERS COMPLETELY OUTPLAYED

Fortune smiled on South China "B" at Caroline Hill yesterday when, receiving the Club as visitors, they secured two points by the odd goal in three after having been completely outplayed for at least nine-tenths of the game.

The Club's players and followers must have been keenly disappointed with the final result of this match, because there can be no doubt that if over a team deserved maximum points, that team was the Club on yesterday's performance. From being much the better side in the initial half, they went on to overwhelm the opposition after the interval. On more than one occasion the woodwork proved to be the medium that frustrated scoring efforts and intelligent anticipation of the full-backs was another feature, as three times Wong Wah-gay was well beaten, only for one of his backs to step into the breach and clear.

Always on Defence

The Chinese were forced on to the defensive for practically the whole of the game but despite this, they played with grit and determination and with quick tackles, rarely gave Elliott, Wilson and Drown any time in which to deliberate. So often were South China playing with their backs to the wall that little was seen of their attack, but it can safely be said that they were not wanting in the brief moments that they were allowed to hold the ball. The forwards certainly took advantage of their meagre chances to turn the sound defensive work of the side into a victory and credit must be given to Yeung Shui-yick for both goals.

Skinner was effective on the opposite flank and Forrow hardly ever made a mistake, the Club intermediate trio being the key to the team's dominance of the exchanges. Both backs kicked a good length, tackled and positioned themselves well, but Syd. Strange marred his display towards the close by becoming rather wild—it was his careless tackle that gave Yeung Shui-yick the opportunity to flash across the centre for the winning goal. In goal, Rodger had little to do and had no chance with the shots that beat him.

Fowler Missed

The Club, undoubtedly, missed Fowler and the scheming Fleming, but Drown and Stone combined to make an effective wing, the inselroman having had luck with several of his efforts. The ball ran badly for Elliott and the honours of the attack were collected by Wilson and Bickford, their adroitness giving the South China defence many anxious moments.

South China were best served by Wong Wah-gay, though he was blessed with any amount of luck. Leung In-chun, Chung Chi-ying and Lam Tak-po.

No scoring resulted in the first half when play was for long periods stubbornly contested in midfield, the attacking element mainly coming from the Club team, who, playing the better football, were on top during the latter portion of the half. After the resumption, South China, quite against the run of play, opened the scoring. Yeung Shui-yick, securing from Yau Wah-hing, raced away and beat Rodger with a low, curling shot. This reverse only atung the Club to greater effort and, retreating with a sweeping attack, they soon levelled the scores when Elliott lobbed a ball over the advancing keeper after Wilson had placed him in possession with a neatly-headed pass. The Club continued their pressure, but towards the close another breakaway by Yeung enabled Chan Tak-fai to convert a perfect centre for the winning goal.

South China "B":—Wong Wah-gay; Leung In-chun, Chung Chi-ying; Yau Wah-hing, Lam Tak-po, Henry Yeung; Yeung Shui-yick, Yau Hon-woo, Chan Tak-fai, Cheuk Shek-kam and Lee Shek-yau.

Club "Red":—Hill Strange (S.); Skinner, Forrow, Strange (F.); Stone, Drown, Elliot, Wilson and Bickford.

In Lively Stand

PEREIRA BOWLS WELL

The Interport cricket eleven, showing definite signs of staleness, suffered a heavy defeat at the hands of an ex-Interporters' eleven at the H.K.C.C. yesterday.

The features of the match were Pereira's bowling. Duckitt's fielding and a lively partnership between Owen Hughes and Sayer which realised 76 runs in as many minutes.

Owen Hughes hit nine boundaries in his 51, while Sayer had 25 singles! Wodehouse hit a six, off Nazarin, and four boundaries in his 35.

A. K. Mackenzie, the popular H.K.C.C. Hon. Secretary, and D. McLellan, the Interport twelfth man in 1932, took the places of A. R. Minu and A. H. Madar in the Interport team.

Prior to the match a tiffin to which ex-Interporters were invited was held in the Cricket Club pavilion and was well attended.

TO-DAY'S SOCCER CLASSIC

South China "A" And Rifles To Meet

NAVY ALSO MAKE DEBUT

The outstanding feature of to-day's League soccer programme is the First Division clash between the Royal Ulster Rifles, strongest contenders for the senior championship, and South China "A", the holders and Senior Shield champions, who will make their first appearance this season.

South China will be without Lee Wai-tung, who is resting from his Olympic and European tour, and his vacancy in the forward line will be filled by Lai Shiu-wing, one of the most promising of the South China "B" forwards.

South China "A" are an unknown quantity this season as they have not really been seen together as a team, although several of them turned out in the Aeroplane Fund match.

Rifles Have Good Team

The Rifles, by decisively beating the Club last Saturday, are in a very strong position and to-day's match may mean everything to them. There is a possibility that there will be a change at forward as Ferguson, their leader, is a doubtful starter.

The Navy will also make their debut this season when they meet the Kowloon Chinese on the Club ground to-day. The Navy, like South China "A", are an unknown quantity, although they are expected to beat the Kowloon Chinese. In the remaining senior clash the East Lanes, should take both points off the Police.

The following is to-day's programme:—

FIRST DIVISION
Police v EAST LANES.	(Kowloon, 4.30 p.m.)
Kowloon C. v NAVY	(Club, 4.30 p.m.)
Rifles v S. CHINA "A"	(Sookunpoo, 4.30 p.m.)
SECOND DIVISION
Chinese Police v EAST LANES.	(Kowloon, 3.00 p.m.)
Kowloon C. v NAVY	(Club, 3.00 p.m.)
Rifles v ENGINEERS	(Sookunpoo, 3.00 p.m.)
THIRD DIVISION
Service Corps v ST. JOSEPH'S	(Chatham Road, 3.00 p.m.)

Hong Kong's Flowery Bower

The Shou-sun Hill "Nursery"

GORGEOUS ORCHID SECTION

(From A Special Correspondent)

"I know a bank whereon the wild thyme blows,
Where oxlips and the nodding violet grows,
Quite over-canopied with luscious woodbine,
With sweet musk-roses, and with eglantine."

—SHAKESPEARE.

EVER since it was opened in 1928, the Clover Flower Shop, which now has its headquarters in the Gloucester Arcade, has served the Colony's demands as efficiently as can be expected of any first class florist. It originally had its shop in Ice House Street, but as the business grew, more spacious and central premises were soon required and the management very wisely selected their present store, which is situated so centrally as to cause little or no inconvenience to anyone desiring to give an order for the day's requirements.

It would appear that the people responsible for the running of a flower shop have what might be commonly described as an "easy time," surrounded as they always are with lovely and sweet-smelling flowers, but is it generally recognised that a business of this nature requires as much organisation as, for instance, the running of a large commercial firm?

A great deal of work has to be done daily, behind the scenes, if you like to put it that way, in the Nursery at Shou-sun Hill in Little Hong Kong Valley. This Nursery was opened in 1928 and it then covered about one acre of land. To-day the Nursery covers over 10 acres of land, though the lots are not all grouped together, due to the fact that it was not possible to obtain a suitable plot of land large enough to answer the Nursery's needs.

A visit to this veritable fairy-land of flowers is in itself an object lesson. In it one will find every type of flower that can be grown in this climate, while in one section, the fall wonga, the Chinese word for gardeners, give all their time and attention to experimenting with flowers which are foreign to those parts, and in passing it would be interesting to note that they are meeting with a fair measure of success.

Now Exporting Lettuces

A good portion of the Nursery is devoted to the cultivation of vegetables such as lettuces, celery and cauliflower etc. Incidentally it is worthy of note that the Clover Flower Shop is the first firm in Hong Kong to grow lettuces on a commercial scale, this being carried out under the most hygienic methods and under the personal supervision of the manager, Mr. Andrew Tse. In the cooler months of the year the lettuces and celery produced from this garden are of such good quality that they would stand very favourable comparison with those imported from America, and every year a large quantity of the Clover Flower Shop's own grown lettuces and celery are exported to the Straits Settlements and Shanghai.

In one corner of the Nursery are the greenhouses to accommodate the very large collection of orchids imported from all parts of the world, and the sight of this beautiful flower, in all its colours, is enough reward for the time spent on the long motor trip out to the Nursery. Nearby is a selection of maidenhair fern and there are also glass frames for cacti.

After tearing myself away from the beautiful orchid section of the Nursery, I found myself confronted with another wonderful sight when I came to the section reserved entirely for gladioli, and there any one of us who has not a soft spot for this beautiful flower? It is a favourite with young and old alike. Due to the systematic way in which they are planted, the Clover Flower Shop are now in a position to supply gladioli to their patrons at any time of the year, and this should be particularly welcome news to the housewives who are forever in search of beautiful flowers for interior decoration.

From Bed To Bed

In the Nursery one sees the different types of flowers and plants in their different stages. There are some that have only just sprung up from the ground. On the next bed we see the same type of plant, ready to bloom and in the third section are the flowers in full bloom. Moving still one bed further we find the plants that have already been plucked, and so it goes on.

The spring is a delightful time to visit the Nursery, for then one really walks through a bed of flowers. With everything in full bloom, the whole of the Nursery is just a sea of beautiful colours, the flowers stirring slightly in the breeze. Large numbers of people go out to this garden on Saturdays and Sundays and the management of the Clover Flower Shop are ever-ready to issue passes to anyone interested enough to make the trip to this delightful retreat in Little Hong Kong Valley, where the flowers for our vases and tables are tended by an expert band of workmen.

A vendor of clothes props had suffered a tiring and unprofitable day. With a few samples attached, he was resting outside a skyscraper office building, and heard a faint call from above. He looked up to see someone beckoning to him from a window on the top-most floor. Scouting a sale, he hurried inside, but found the lift out of order and had a labourious climb to the umpteenth floor.

He was met by a woman who said: "Thanks for coming up. I'll take three dozen." "Three dozen," exclaimed the man. "That's a lot of clothes props." "Clothes props," she cried. "Good heavens, I looked down and thought you were selling toothpicks."

To-day's Tall Story Great excitement was caused in the city. Both traffic and pedestrians were held up by thousands and thousands of rabbits. Even the police were unable to render any assistance. At last it was discovered that they were coming from a cleaner's shop. The police eventually were able to reach the shop and were met by a most distracted proprietor who was frantically waving his hands about and loudly proclaiming that he wished the magician who had left his hat to be cleaned would come and take it away.

The owner of the circus was called away from the show on urgent business, and received a telegram from the animal tamer, which read as follows:—"Leopard escaped, wire instructions." ## SIR ROBERT HO TUNG'S GIFT

Birthday Present
To Chiang

UNIFICATION AT LAST!

In connection with the subscriptions that are being canvassed for the Birthday Plane Fund for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, it is interesting to note that Sir Robert Ho Tung has made a contribution of $100,000, an amount sufficient to buy one plane!

Sir Robert, as is well-known, is keenly interested in the affairs of the country, and it was due to his efforts that the round table conference was brought about in China, a few years after the World War. Sir Robert had then just returned from a European tour at the time and the Peace Conference in Europe and the Washington Conference gave him the idea that a convention, on similar lines, might be of great benefit for the country.

Moment Not Opportune

The conference was held in the North and though the warlords were very sympathetic it was evident that the moment was not ripe to attain the desired results. China was then passing through the period of transition from the old order into the new. Now, at last, the country has attained National Unification and the gift of a plane, by Sir Robert to the Generalissimo serves (1) to mark the completion of the efforts of the infant Chinese Republic to achieve political solidarity and unification and (2) as a mark of appreciation of the Generalissimo who, more than any other single individual, has brought about this happy state of affairs.

Overseas Fleet

The aeroplane itself will form part of the fleet of the Overseas Air Force, the planes being donated by Chinese residents abroad to the National Government for the defence of the political and territorial integrity of the country.

Seen At The Gloucester

The Gloucester Hotel's new ballroom was crowded again on Saturday of last week. Nearly all the well known younger members of Hong Kong "society" seemed to be there. The dance floor was so crowded it was not easy to see to the full advantage all the pretty dresses; one kept getting promising glimpses here and there only to see the dress and its owner whirl away in the opposite direction.

Among the "young marrieds" pretty Mrs. Paton was, as usual, noticeable in a very sweet white rose patterned voile frock. She lent an old-fashioned touch to her dress with a Victorian locket on a narrow black ribbon round her neck, and earrings to match. With her fair hair, the whole effect was most becoming.

Mrs. Peaks was wearing a white frock ornamented with jade green clasps at the borders of the neck-line and on the belt. She has only recently returned from the North. Mrs. Anderson, who with her husband, Squadron Leader V.N.D. Anderson, is shortly leaving us for Singapore, was in a two-piece

PILSUDSKI GROUP

New Organisation
Formed

"SUNDAY HERALD" SPECIAL
Warsaw, Yesterday.
The formation of the Pilsudski group into a new organisation, which has been in progress for some time under the direction of the Commander of the Polish war veterans' organisation, Colonel Koc, is now practically complete, and a report has been submitted to Government authorities.

It is reported that this organisation's activities will extend to every field of Government affairs. The organisation is in especially close alignment with the military department, but will not replace the political parties, which will however, play but a slight role in future.—Trans-Ocean Service.

The Mediterranean Route

OUR natural human cynicism has made the expression "too good to be true" a common everyday phrase. It is rather quaint that we have no corresponding expression "too bad to be true." No catastrophe can be so overwhelming that we would be inclined to reject it without further parley. But in the head offices of the big Departments one such major calamity has been recently very closely scrutinised — the possibility that some hostile Power might cut what has been called the life-line of the Empire, the sea route by way of the Mediterranean, the Suez Canal and the Red Sea. Every part of the Empire except Canada is interested in keeping it open, and each move that has any bearing on this direct seaway is carefully watched in India, in Australia and Japan.

Recently, when Mr. Pirow, the South African Minister of Defence, was in London, plans for making a stronger base at the Cape were submitted by the Admiralty. Mr. Pirow was, of course, quite sympathetic, but the Union Government, which is already responsible for the landward defence of Simon's Town, would prefer to carry out any defence schemes itself. In any case the route round Africa would only be a second best, and would leave defenceless large territories in which we are very closely interested. And even the Cape route might be threatened if some hostile Power were to get hold of the Canaries or the Spanish Protectorates of the Rio del Oro — which lies opposite them on the mainland — or Morocco. Spain has no navy that could protect any of these bases against an ambitious enemy, and it will be many years before the Spanish army can recover from the present chaos.

It is one of the paradoxes of the moment that almost every danger that could arise is covered by some treaty or other, but anybody that would seriously propose to rely on a treaty or a less formal undertaking would be thought to be merely walking towards a pitfall with his head in the air. The Suez Canal, for example, is protected by an international treaty to which all the possible disturbers are signatories, but it was even proposed that the League itself should close the Canal against Italian armaments. There would not in any case be any need to do so, for there are points equally in need of protection. It has been said by many writers that the Italian annexation of Abyssinia has placed Italy in a position to cut the traffic of the Red Sea, to annex the Yemen and establish a base on the Arabian side. This ignores the fact that Abyssinia does not add an inch to the Italian seaboard, and as for the conquest of the Arabs, there is no reason to suppose that they are more inclined to lie down and take what is coming to them in Arabia than we have found them in Palestine.

There are two other points of danger, the Straits of Gibraltar and the narrow waters South of Sicily, where the Italians recently made a demonstration of the rapidity with which they could glide their "sea-alses" across and back. The official broadcaster at Rome said they had done this feat "while the British battleships sailed 40 knots." Even if our Navy had remained ignorant of the sea-alsed idea — which has also been adopted by the Japanese — it could hardly refrain from taking proper measures after being so rudely reminded. There is no reason to doubt that Malta is being placed in a state of defence, and the Government has now been restored to its old Crown Colony status as a safeguard. The special committee appointed for the purpose has recently reported that there is nothing in the bombing plane to indicate that battleships are no longer useful.

Opposite Gibraltar the Moorish troops have been taken over to fight in Spain, and there is nothing left to protect Morocco or keep order. It is ominous that the rebel commander, General Franco, states that Morocco will be proclaimed to be a self-governing Colony. By an Anglo-French Declaration of 1904 Morocco cannot be ceded to anyone else without our consent — but there is sure to be some anxiety about this key-point.

Hong Kong Personalities

Continuing the exclusive series of sketches of leading Colony residents by Mr. A. S. Kony, the talented Hungarian artist.

REV. SAMUEL KAU YEN LEE

OUR personality this week is the Rev. Samuel Kau Yen Lee, resident pastor of the Church of Saint Mary, Causeway Bay.

Born in Chungshan, Kwangtung Province, in 1886, and after receiving his elementary education in Canton, he went at the age of 15 to Honolulu to the Iolani College, where, incidentally, Dr. Sun Yat-sen also received his early education. Having completed his studies there he returned to Canton at the age of 22 to devote himself to the study of theology at the Holy Trinity College. He was ordained priest by Bishop Lander in 1914, following which he was given charge of Christ Church in Chungshan. He was there for three years and in 1917 he was appointed pastor of Holy Trinity Church in Kowloon City. In June 1918 he became resident pastor of Saint Stephen's Church, Hong Kong. He held that position until 1934, when he was appointed resident pastor of the Church of Saint Mary, Causeway Bay.

The Rev. Mr. Lee says that the main interest in his life is social service, and his record certainly bears witness to it. He founded the Ting Kwok Orphanage in Kowloon City — the Bishop of Hong Kong, the Right Reverend Bishop Hall, took a great interest in that institution and was instrumental in giving it better facilities in Tai-po.

The Rev. Mr. Lee has also been Chairman of the Chinese Christian Union since 1922. He is one of the foundation members of the Anti-Mui Tsai Society, one of the founders of the South China Bible Society, a Council Member of the Associated Schools of St. Stephen and Fairlie, Chairman of the newly-founded school for the deaf and dumb and Vice-Chairman of the Chinese-Anglican Church Body. Since 1918 he has been Secretary of the Standing Committee of the Diocesan Synod of Chung Hua Shing Kung Kui, South China, while he is now on the Board of Directors of the Hong Kong Y.M.C.A.

THE PASSING HOUR

BY A.N.M.

I have to thank "Henry M. Stanley" for his correction of a confusion which appeared in my notes of the 4th instant, owing to the omission after "Kisumu" of the words "and Kilgoma." I hope, by the way, that this correspondent, when he departed this life, did not retain his predilection for tropical climates. The competitors in the great air race followed very much the line of Rhodes' "Cape to Cairo" Railway dream. The North and South Railway was to be the "backbone," from which the rest of the Continent was to be "herring-boned" by lines to the coast. The dream will very soon be realised, when the planes for a regular service have been built, with the rather important difference that the branch lines will be the solid part of the anatomy, and the backbone itself will be an air line. This is in accordance with the criticisms made at the time by the professional engineers and transport men, that the natural course of trade was East and West, not North and South. Both places owe their appearance on the map entirely to the engineers, who have always been rather peremptory gents. In dealing with the communications of the Dark Continent, it is quite exceptional for the railways to go actually to the towns whose names appear in the time-tables. If the station is anything within five miles distant they are quite satisfied.

KISUMU

THE terminus of the Kenya line on Lake Victoria is a few miles from where everyone had expected it to be. An enthusiastic friend seized hold of me one day and enquired whether I wanted to make my fortune. On being assured that I would have no objection, he said: "Buy a corner lot at Port Florence." Everybody was doing it, for the railway, which had long awaited its final stretch, pointed towards this place, used by Arab dhows and marked on the maps. The engineers went a few miles further, and the corner lot dreams were never turned into cash. At the other end of the line they did just the same thing. People talk of landing at Mombasa, but the port that the big ships use is actually Kilindini, which is connected by an electric tramway. The long line was never expected to be much of a dividend-payer. It was built to kill the slave trade and the horrible cruelties of the long trek made by porters with loads carried on their heads, bound together by chains and driven by whips. Some of these drivers were still to be met when I visited that part of the world — sleek and respected fathers of families who had lived for years on what they made when they were younger men. They taught me one lesson about this curious human nature of ours — how completely the maxim "business is business" can departmentalise the mind, so that the same man can be completely without feeling and yet quite sympathetic according to the capacity in which he is acting and whom he is dealing with.

KILGOMA

THE other place mentioned is about 300 miles due south on Lake Tanganyika, and is another creation of the engineers. Ujiji was famous as a slave mart and was a considerable town, but the engineers went a few miles north, and saw Kilgoma under peculiar circumstances, in the middle of the great war. There was little except that the rails came to an end. No fares were collected, and there was no regular service. One had to apply to a Railway Service Officer for a "chit." Having got leave for 10 days or so, I made application and had no difficulty, but, of course, I took my own bed with me and my own food. The line had just been completed before war was declared, but never brought into regular use. The very compasses British column that pushed south from Kenya, then called "British East," cut the railway about its centre. All the rolling stock to the east of that point was destroyed by the Germans at a point near Morogoro, where the line passed close to a precipice, by the simple expedient of laying down rails for a couple of hundred yards to the edge, and then pushing the carriages trucks and engines over. Down five hundred feet below the pile of tangled steel and wood burned for some six weeks. Some rolling stock to the west of the point was captured, but as a parting salute all the windows were smashed.

A GRIMY JOURNEY

AS no coal was available, owing to the activities of submarines and shortage of ships generally, the engine was fired with wood. Parties of natives would cut some trees, which were plentiful over most of the route, and build neat piles of split logs by the side of the line. Sometimes it was green, and sometimes fairly dry, and our pace varied accordingly. Nobody felt called on to worry about that, for time was no object, but we had plenty to smoke that drifted through the coaches and settled all over us. After the first day or so, when we could get some water at some of the stopping places, nobody cared for appearances. We reached the end of our journey like nothing but a troupe of nigger minstrels, and were received by friends with hearty but quite unsympathetic laughter and chaff.

RAW MATERIALS

THE railway is a necessity of civilisation, for the same reason that compelled the building of the Kenya line, but it is even less of a commercial asset. One or two gold mines have been opened up, but no very rich ones. They are still owned by German companies, whose rights have been carefully respected, but all that one can say apropos of the claim that the colonial supplies of raw materials are necessary to German industry, is that the exports are bigger than they used to be, and that they make only a fraction of 1 per cent. of German trade. The objection to the German claim is simply that none of the neighbouring territories, which have difficulty in paying their way in peace, want the added expense of keeping ready for war.

Five Years Ago

(Extracts from the Sunday Herald of October 18, 1931.)

At the annual aquatic sports of the Boys Scouts' Association B. Chan, of the Sea Scouts, equalled the record of 70 seconds for the 100 Yards free-style established by A. May in 1927.

Shanghai won the rubber in the Lawn Bowls Interport when they beat Hong Kong in the final game by 25 shots to 14. The Shanghai team was composed of G. W. Glover, C. Richards, G. B. Stormes and T. Main (skip), while Hong Kong was represented by H. Hampton (K.C.C.), R. F. Lus (Recreio), R. Lapsley (Kowloon Docks) and A. E. Silstone (K.C.C.) (skip).

In the first League game of the season Club de Recreio beat the Police Recreation Club by 4 wickets in the junior division of the Cricket League. Dr. A. P. Guterres, with 60 not out, was top-scorer for the winners, while T. Hunter scored 35 for the Police.

The South Wales Borderers beat the Kowloon British School Old Boys' Association by six points to nil in a friendly Rugby game. Pears, Kilby, Summers and Biddell were outstanding for the losers.

Strange Stories

HERE are strange stories from parts of the world sent by Reuter Correspondents recently:—

Leonard Roberts, aged 85, of Perry, New York, has just completed his own coffin.

A carpenter by trade, he thought this would be a good way of using his spare time.

He has also prepared his own funeral oration.

Sinking City

Onaka, the Manchester of Japan, with a population of 3,000,000, is sinking at the rate of two inches a year.

The rate is tending to accelerate and part of the city has subsided four inches since observations began two years ago.

Apparently the city is sinking bodily as part of a general natural settling and no damage has yet been reported to the city's buildings.

Rattle Snake As Bed-Fellow

Becoming tired as they trudged along the dusty highway, Messrs. Pearl Mills and Ransom Blackwell stretched themselves out under the shades of a tree near Cerro Gordo, North Carolina, and fell asleep.

When they awoke, they were startled to find a five-foot rattlesnake coiled between them.

They jumped away and slew the reptile with a club.

Filthy Lucre

The less money one has, the safer one is from disease, to judge from an investigation carried out in Japan.

It showed that banknotes, carry more bacteria than silver or nickel coins.

The average 10-yen (12 shillings) note was found to carry 54 bacteria, while small silver and copper coins were considerably less dangerous.

GUESSED WRONG!

AS forty men emerged from a Middlesex casual ward recently they found a saloon car waiting outside and a man who was handling out sealed envelopes.

Thirty-eight men took an envelope each. Two thought the stranger was giving away tracts, said "No, thanks, mate" — and passed on.

A mile down the road, someone broke the news to them that each of the envelopes had contained a £1 note and a good luck message.

They very nearly broke all records for the mile, but only to find that the car had moved on.

Reminds one of the man who stood all day on London Bridge, some years before the War, offering to sell sovereigns for sixpence each.

Everybody knew the sovereigns were "duds" — so there were no buyers. But the coins were genuine — and the unsuccessful salesman won his wager!

Rare specimens of fossil pipe fish dating from the Miocene, age 5,000,000 years ago have been added to collections at the University of California, Museum of Paleontology. The fossils were found in rock near Santa Barbara.

A process for printing from rubber plates has been developed.

His Notebook Saved Him

A notebook saved a man when he was attacked by armed thieves near Breslau.

When one of them fired at him the bullet smashed a pocket-mirror, broke a pencil and then embedded itself in his notebook in his coat pocket without doing further harm.

Earns £1,000 An Hour

Mr. Rudy Vallee, the American crooner, receives £1,000 an hour for a wireless broadcast.

This was disclosed in the course of an action brought in New York against the radio star by Mr. Charles Bellak, who is seeking £24,000 for alleged breach of contract.

Mainly about WOMEN

A MOST delightful book just published, "The Book of Humorous Verse," brings to mind the saying, "Only a hope of immortality and a sense of humour distinguish man from the beasts of the field;" but not to appear too dogmatic perhaps we should make one exception—the laughing hyena. Anyway the book offers a marvellous opportunity to test one's own reactions to determine whether or not one deserves to be classed as a human being.

There are the gallant lines:
"Lord Erskine, at women presuming to rail,
Calls a wife "a tin canister
tied to one's tail;
And fair Lady Anne, while the subterfuge he carries on,
Seems hurt at his Lordship's degrading comparison.
But wherefore degrading?
Consider'd aright,
A canister's useful, and
polish'd, and bright;
And should dirt its original
purity hide,
That's the fault of the puppy
to whom it is tied."

Or lines in happy manner defining a sailor's connubial bliss:
"Of all the wimpering doubly blest
The sailor's wife's the happiest.
For all she does is stay at home
And knit and darn—and let
'im roam.
Of all the husbands on the earth
The sailor has the finest berth.
For in 'is cabin he can sit
And sail and sail—and let 'er knit."

The parentage of a fugitive verse on the "Stein Family" is as difficult to determine as the parentage of a foundling in an asylum. Strange, for it was written in the last few years and there are usually many people ready to claim such a lusty critical child as:

"There's a wonderful family
called Stein,
There's Gert and there's Epp
and there's Ein;
Gert's poems are bunk,
Epp's statues are junk
And no one can understand Ein."

But why cavil when there is so much to enjoy?

There are lines on "Woman's
Will" which are attributed to John G. Saxe:

"Men dying make their wills,
but wives
Escape a work so sad.
Why should they make what
all their lives

The gentle dames have had?"
And one that is not merely apt to confirm the bachelor in his lonely existence; one that gives us a very nice picture of the gentlemen who go to the Races:

"I have often been told, said
the horse,
Of man's intellectual force.
A thing, if correct,
I should never suspect
From the people I see at the course."

If you are a gourmet, you will especially enjoy Ogden Nash's appeal to the age of reason:
"Some sing of ladies' eyes
And some of ladies' lips,
Refined ones praise their
ladylike ways,
And coarse ones hymn their hips.
The Oxford Book of English
Verse
Is lush with lyrics tender
A poet, I guess, is more or less
Preoccupied with gender.
Yet I, though custom call me
crude,
Prefer to sing in praise of food."

Do Your Nerves Stay Up

when you go to bed?

WHEN restless nerves will not let you sleep—when you start at every noise, and the small worries of the day are unduly magnified—it is a sure sign that your nerves are undernourished. Your daily dietary is not providing sufficient nerve restoring nutriment.

What you need is 'Ovaltine.' This delicious beverage is supremely rich in the nutriment required to feed and restore the nerves. Taken at bedtime its soothing influence quickly induces deep untroubled sleep.

Avoid haphazard mixtures of cocoa and chocolate which claim to be just as good — there is nothing just as good as 'Ovaltine.'

About TOWN

WE may be behind time a bit in Hong Kong, though the interval is steadily shrinking, but the advantage is not all on one side. Amongst the new developments that have not yet reached us is the "stay-in strike," though one can easily think of various branches of industry in which it would be very effective. It makes it impossible, of course, to take on "scabs" who will carry on the work, and the fear of sabotage is some protection against any attempt to introduce police for the ejection of the strikers. The weak point is that by forming a cordon around the occupied premises the "in-stayers" may be starved out, but that does not apply to any place where there is a good stock of provender on hand. This was illustrated by the latest and one of the most amusing cases, a strike of the croupiers and other staff at the Casino at Mentone. The employees helped themselves to a generous dinner prepared with extra care by the chef, who knew that he was working for a critical lot of connoisseurs. The wines served were selected on the principle that "the best is good enough for me." Next morning the croupiers, accustomed to a life of incident, felt rather bored, and the ruling passion won the day. Collecting all the counters—as very little cash was available—they divided them equally, and the head croupier proceeded to play all the others for their chips. At midday on the third day he had won the last chip—a total amounting to the equivalent of £13,000. Boredom resumed its sway, and a few hours later the strikers surrendered. The moral is obvious, and has very little to do with Labour politics. If a collection of experts, playing without any disturbing anxiety, is bound to be cleaned out within three days, what about the casual visitor?

Time

ANOTHER thought arising out of the Mentone strike is the different rate at which time seemed to pass according to whether the staff was interested or merely "marking time." The more you mark it the slower it goes—it becomes a slow-motion picture of the world. The worker tied to a routine job of working a switch or writing up a ledger thinks an hour will never end, but when he has escaped to Caroline Hill, and is watching every movement of the game, time seems to be called a few minutes after the kick off. In this, as in so many other things, the ordinary man has merely anticipated the savants.

The Tenth Of The Tenth

THE silver jubilee of the Chinese Republic passed off with very successful celebrations. We join very heartily in all the hopes expressed for the future, even from the most selfish motives. The fact is that in the world as we know it today every disturbed country is a menace to all the other countries. It is a temptation to adventurers, and what we want is a few years of confidence to let the common people get the benefit of all the new discoveries, which make a far happier world merely a matter of opportunity and time, without any fantastic Wellsian nightmares. The barometer of progress is not the State or the Workshop or the Laboratory, but the individual man and woman.

Sports Chatter

Interport Soccer Against Malaya?
I HEAR that there is a serious move in Singapore, or rather Malaya, to try and arrange Interport football matches against Saigon and possibly Hong Kong. Mr. R. L. Hastie, the former President of the Singapore Football Association, in the course of a farewell speech, said that an Interport contest against Hong Kong was more than possible with the quick passenger steamers now plying between the two ports.

Mrs. Harrop Back
MRS. P. M. Harrop, former Hon. Secretary of the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Association and Club, returned to the Colony from home leave last Saturday by the R.M.S. Empress of Japan.

First Winter Ga'a
THE first winter swimming gala between the European Y.M.C.A. the home Club, the Chinese Y.M.C.A., the Mak Nguh Association and probably the Victoria Recreation Club will take place on Wednesday, October 28, in the European Y.M.C.A.'s heated pool.

Foolish Hockey Error
THE dividing up of the Mamak Hockey Tournament entries by drawing lots was a foolish mistake. The majority of the best teams are included in the "B" Section, while the newcomers are in the "A" Section. It would have been much better to have had a draw in the ordinary manner, and to have had the strongest recognised teams "seeded."

Swimming Instructors' Class
MR. Ip Kun-yim, who was selected by the China National Amateur Athletic Federation to travel to the Berlin Games with China's two swimming representatives, Chan Chan-hing and Miss Yeung Sau-king, has returned to the Colony. I understand that he will personally hold a class for swimming instructors before the commencement of the next swimming season.

Mrs. Dunbar Back In Colony
MRS. Lambert Dunbar, who is one of the keenest lady supporters at the Hong Kong Jockey Club race meetings, returned to the Colony from a holiday last Saturday by the R.M.S. Empress of Japan. The same afternoon she was down at the Valley, looking very well indeed after a pleasant trip back here. She had the mortification of seeing her pony Bear Claw win and later disqualified.

Pau To Continue Playing

PAU KA-PING tells me that he is not giving up football this season, in spite of rumours to that effect. He would have liked very much to have played with South China "B" team, but owing to the fact that Wong Wing, the "A" team goalkeeper, is on the injured list, he will be playing for that team.

By the Judge

An Able Substitute

BANDSMAN Moore has ably filled the vacancy that has been caused by Campbell, who will soon be leaving, and it looks as if the Rifles have no need to worry any further. Campbell has been playing in the forward line and has shone there, his positional play being the feature of his game.

Hussain Takes Up Hockey

A. HUSSAIN, the St. Joseph's pivot, is the newest convert to hockey, and is often to be seen practising with the Radio Sports Club players at Caroline Hill. He will be playing for them in friendly games this season.

Coming Goalkeeper

THE Radio Sports Club are fortunate in having C. Rocha playing for them in goal in their hockey games. This is his first season in goal and he has given very creditable displays to date, though he feels more at home at full-back.

Lee Joining Eastern

LEE Ming-on, the South China "B" team left-winger, will be joining Eastern as he fears that when Yeung Shui-yick returns to the team, he will be unable to retain his place. He will probably play at inside-left and partner M. Subhan.

Hughes Receives Promotion

HUGHES, of the Royal Welch Fusiliers, will be playing on the right wing for the senior team from now on in place of Roberts as the latter will be leaving by the next troopship.

"Y" Ladies' Swimming Coach

G. LANGE, the European Y.M.C.A. swimming captain, is holding a swimming class for "Y" ladies in the "Y" pool every Wednesday evening between the hours of 5.30 p.m. and 6.30 p.m. It is hoped to train a relay team and have specialised swimmers for breast-stroke and back-stroke for competitive events next season.

No Newcomer To Job

G. CLARK, the Kowloon Cricket Club tennis player and Army tennis champion, who has just taken over the Hon. Secretaryship of the Mamak Hockey Tournament, is no stranger to a job of this nature, having had considerable experience in organising hockey and tennis tournaments for some years while stationed in India.

Clarke Now Swimming Coach

"NOBBY" Clarke, the former Police soccer goal-keeper, is very keen on swimming and is often seen at the Victoria Recreation Club. Stationed at West Point, Clarke takes the members of the Street Boys' Club for swimming twice a week to Telegraph Bay, where he teaches them how to swim.

Comdr. Broome May Be Leaving

I UNDERSTAND that Comdr. E. Broome, the Naval Vice-President of the Mamak Hockey Tournament, and also the Navy hockey goalkeeper in the Triangular Tournament, may be leaving the Colony in the near future.

New Riding Recruit

MR. Hin Shing-lo, the well-known local barrister, has, I understand, taken up riding. He has been seen a number of times at Bob Charles' riding school in Stubbs Road.

KING LEOPOLD'S STATEMENT

Elucidation Requested
By Britain

FRENCH PRESS COMMENT

London, Yesterday.

It is understood that the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, has asked the Belgian Government through the Belgian Ambassador in London for further elucidation of certain points in King Leopold's statement. — Reuter.

RESERVING JUDGMENT

Paris: The Belgian Ambassador at Paris held a long conference yesterday with the Secretary-General of the French Foreign Office. Uncertainty still prevails as to the real meaning of the Belgian King's declaration of Belgium's policy in future.

The Paris Soir, in summing up the present situation, says that all conjectures at this moment are inopportune, since the Belgian Government has not yet taken up the issue, and it is expected that the measures will not be judged until they are passed or rejected. In a few days, so the paper states, the Belgian Government will provide the interested Powers with an explanation of how it proposes to put the King's declaration into harmony with Belgium's treaty obligations, and even now it is asserted that the neutrality policy will in no way conflict with the obligations under the Locarno Pact and the League of Nations Covenant. The Belgian Government is of the opinion that the word "neutrality" is misleading, and that the English words "no entanglements" are more correct.

The Paris Soir concludes by saying that in any case the two interested Powers, France and England, can make no move until the Belgian Government has considered the measure and issued a complete explanation, and thus judgment must be reserved until the doctrine becomes fact. — Trans-Ocean Service.

The Rector of St. Margaret's Church, Happy Valley, announces that to-day being the Feast of the Church's Patron Saint there will be a Solemn Pontifical Mass at 9 a.m. At 4.30, a procession and Benediction will take place. The Sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Fr. Cooney, S.J.

ANTI-GAS MOVES IN BRITAIN

Special Instruction By Trained Doctors

London, Yesterday.

The Home Office announces that ten specially selected doctors, trained at the Home Office Civilian Anti-gas School, are now ready to instruct doctors and nurses with regard to anti-gas precautions. The instructors will be stationed in London and other centres throughout the country. The Government will provide the technical equipment and the services of the instructors free. — Reuter's Bulletin Service.

EUROPEAN POLITICS

Proposed Five-Power
Meeting

EFFECTS OF BELGIUM'S DECLARATION

London, Yesterday.

Public opinion shows considerable interest in the meaning attaching to the declaration made by the King of the Belgians to his Cabinet on Wednesday regarding Belgium's position in international affairs. The reactions in other countries are fully reported in the press. Attention tends to be concentrated on the bearing of the statement of policy on the diplomatic preparations already in train for a five-Power meeting, at which, by the terms of the communiqué of July 23, the principal subject of discussion would be the replacement of the Locarno Treaty by a new agreement.

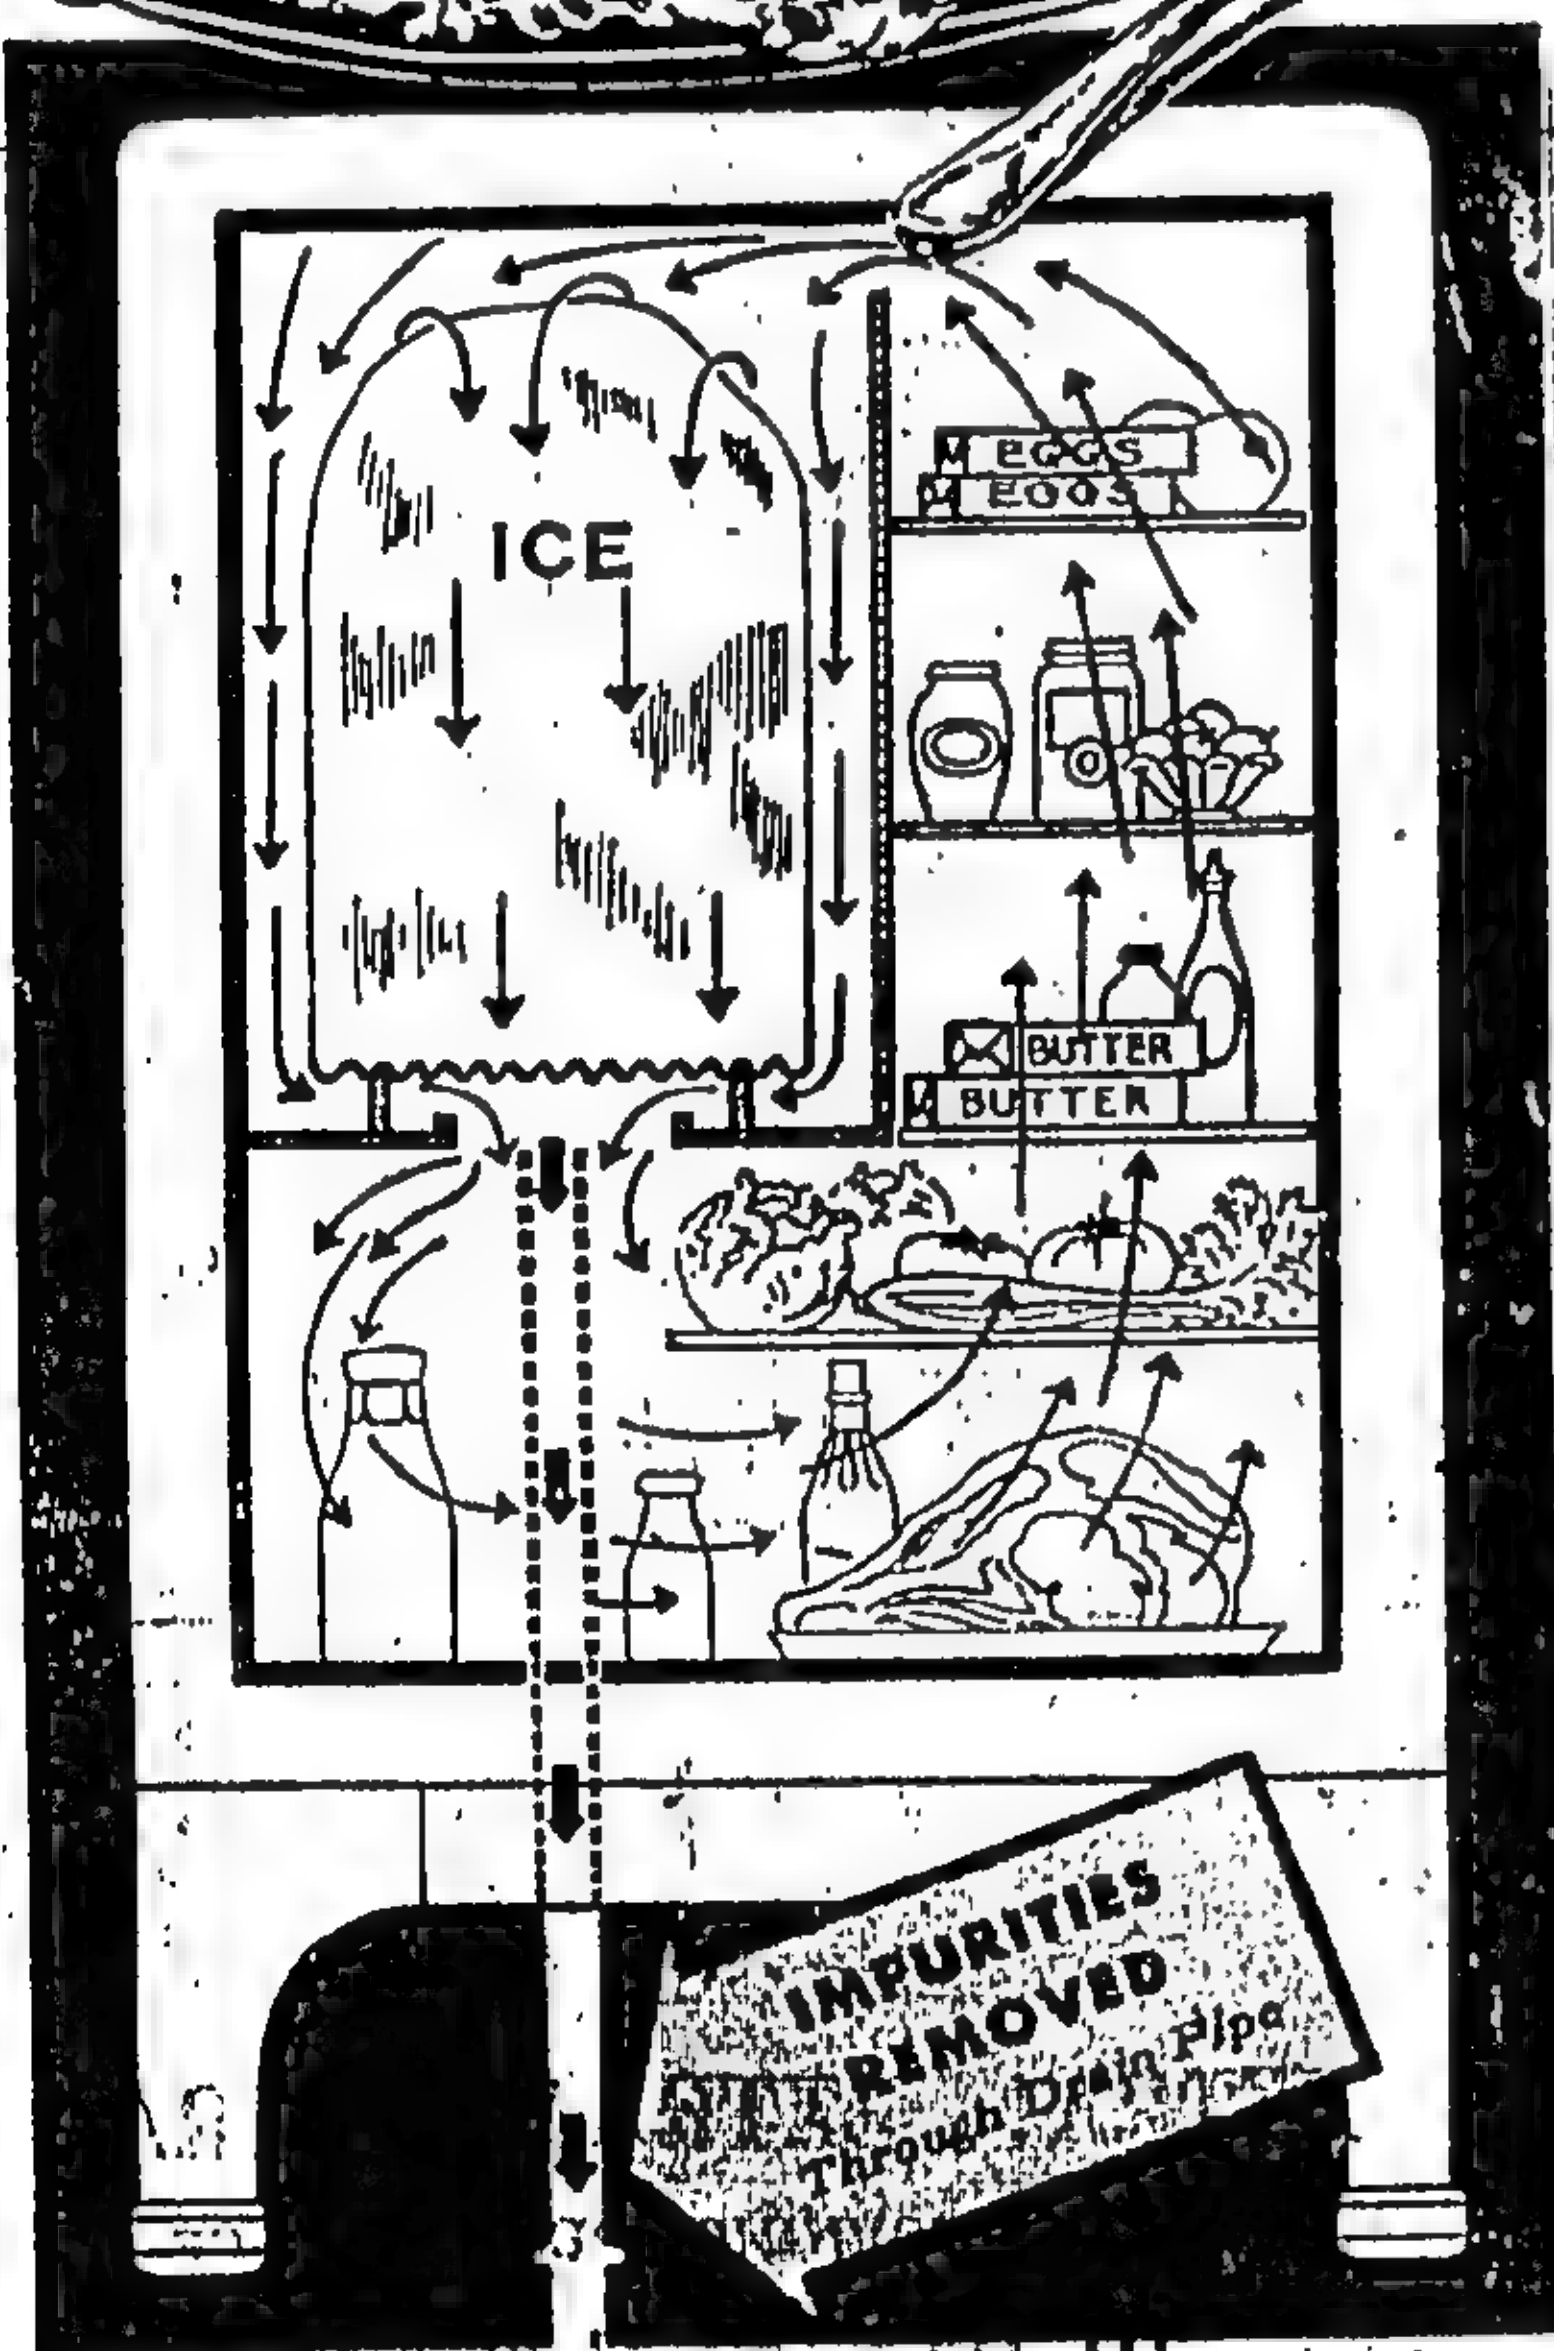

As the Foreign Secretary has repeatedly affirmed in recent speeches, it is the earnest desire of His Majesty's Government to see a new agreement on the lines of the Locarno Treaty negotiated and signed as part of the work of consolidating peace which lies before the European Powers. As the result of an interview between Mr. Anthony Eden and the Belgian Ambassador on Thursday it is now appreciated in official circles in London that the King of the Belgians' speech is to be regarded as an indication of the policy Belgium is likely to follow in the five-Power discussions, and that the interpretations current in some quarters, to the effect that Belgium intended to repudiate her obligations and particularly those arising out of the League Covenant, were based on a misapprehension.

Nevertheless there is still some surprise at the public statement, as the preparations of the five-Power meeting were to be kept strictly to diplomatic channels. The importance of the declaration is fully understood, and the British Government has asked for an elucidation of some aspects. The replies of the German and French Governments to the proposal sent by the British Government on September 18 regarding the proposed five-Power meeting have been received in the Foreign Office in the last few days. Any reports as to the contents of the German Note must be regarded as pure speculation. — British Wireless Service.

FOOD "WASHED" WITH PURE AIR

Constantly Circulating

*in the Modern Air Conditioned
Refrigerator*

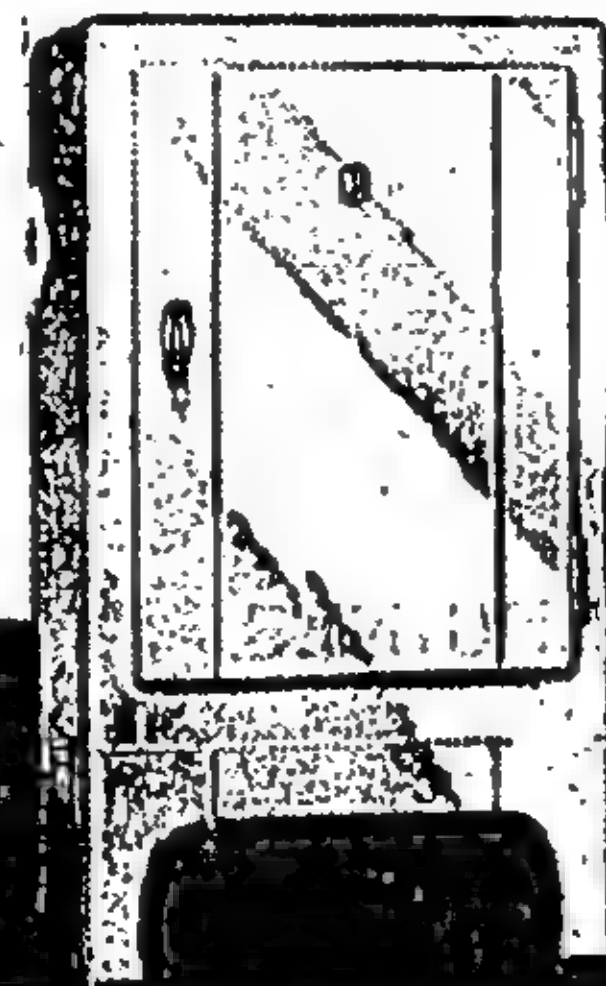

Certain stored foods pass off impurities, unpleasant in odor, which are quickly absorbed by other foods. Thus food, to remain impurity-free and to prevent decay, must be kept in air that is constantly purified as well as chilled. Cold alone is not enough!

The new OLYMPIC ICE Refrigerator, utilizing SIX-SIDED REFRIGERATION, keeps vitalized fresh air constantly circulating around your food. It "picks up" odors and impurities, carries them to the melting ice film, where they are absorbed and eliminated through the drain pipe. Food odors cannot interchange!

Too, the new OLYMPIC Air Conditioned Refrigerator maintains the correct balance of moisture in the air, preventing foods from drying out. Foods retain their natural flavors, juices and vitamins.

Our Ice Service Man will gladly demonstrate the new OLYMPIC Refrigerator.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Our hat is certainly off to LANE, CRAWFORDS for their grand selection of knitwear frocks, Matita sportswear, woollen pullovers and cardigans... and there's not an excuse in the world for not looking chic when you've seen these things. For the first time in years knits may be worn from morning 'til night with confidence; fashions are styled to fit most every figure and they're using colours and details reserved for other materials in the past. LANE, CRAWFORDS even have tunic frocks in knit—exquisite for afternoon wear! And all these are scheduled to be seen on the smartest women.

Maybe it's not very tactful of me to talk in this column about sickness and doctors and prescriptions... but you know these things happen! And when you feel ill naturally you go to the doctor, and I wouldn't be surprised if the doctor in writing his prescription should recommend that you go to the GRAND DISPENSARY. Because there you will have the careful service of qualified pharmacists, and fresh and genuine drugs. And you all know the importance of fresh drugs. The prices, too, you'll find well within reason.

Your faithful shophound is always on the lookout for the best buys in town. This week's find is the famous Fette rugs at THE JADE TREE. They are not just ordinary rugs, but they are made of pure sheep's wool, in the most beautiful designs, and all made by hand. Lovely things that will last a lifetime, never wearing or fraying. So if you are thinking of buying a rug this season take my advice and go early. There are only a limited number of these rugs left, and on account of the wool market in North China you are not likely to have another chance of getting them for a long time. You'll find the ordinary Chinese rugs at THE JADE TREE too.

Every week I can report an innovation at PAUL RENNET'S... the latest is a weekly shipment of new things. So if you had no luck last week don't think that PAUL RENNET'S have let you down... go back this week and you'll probably find just what you've been looking for. Well there's only one solution to that—a visit to THE INTERNATIONAL RADIO SALES AND SERVICE, 27 Hankow Road, Kowloon. They'll fix you up with just what you need—and you may be sure of the best, from them. You'll be happy to know, too, that all your repairs and servicing will be done by qualified British technicians who will come to your home and do the work right there if possible. Terms are arranged to suit the individual.

Can you imagine my pounding out all these notes, and a lot else beside... and baby shrieking at the top of his voice? And, oh, how he can shriek! I used to get exasperated. But now everything is O.K. and I'll tell you the secret of it—it's a secret well worth knowing. WATSON'S BABY WATER is doing the miracle. It's a simple and effective remedy for all disorders arising from digestive disturbances when babies are on the milk diet. And when baby suffers from these troubles all you do is reach out for the bottle—and then peace! Baby sleeps and all is well. And only 25 cents a bottle.

LITTLE NOTES of Great Importance

Fashions come and go... but food despite any fads, must be good. I can vouch for the EMA brand Jams, Jellies, Fruit Butters and Marmalades, and once they come into fashion in your house they won't go out. They are not just ordinary jams but an improvement on them—something different. There are such a variety of flavours as to appeal to the taste of every member of the family, and they are sold in attractive glass jars that cut out that 'metal flavour' so common in the old brands. On sale at all leading provisioners.

There's really one place in town when it comes to talking about hats—and that's DOLLY VARDEN'S. Certainly they stock the largest selection in town—and that means there's something to suit every taste and every pocket. Not only quantity, but quality and style... all that fashion has decreed: the high-crowned classics with their quills, buckles, feathers, pompoms, the new twisted turbans, the casual, swank sports types... all that spells versatility and variety. You've only to visit DOLLAR VARDEN'S to find all or anything in hats you might want.

While you are in the throes of your Autumn shopping don't forget to get a new supply of NOXZEMA. You used it during the summer on the beach, but remember NOXZEMA has many other uses... it's the real friend of the family. NOXZEMA can do more tricks than Malin. It helps baby's chafing and rash, soothes burns and skin irritations of any sort, helps tired and aching feet. You'll feel happier if you have it right at hand. From all leading Dispensaries. We'll talk about books on China—and visit BREWER'S BOOKSHOP. They have "The Commercial and Industrial Manual" of Japan and Manchukuo and also of Hong Kong and China at $35 each. "Three Years Wandering in China" by Robert Fortune was originally priced at $22.50 and is now selling at $17.50. Then there's a new selection of books on China, each written by an expert. "China's Problems and Their Solution" by Wang Ching-wel, "The State of Manchukuo," "Labour Movement and Labour Legislation in China" by Lin Tung-Hai, and "Suppressing Communist-Banditry in China" edited by Tang Leang-Li. And all very reasonably priced.

CLUB RUGBY TEAMS OPEN 1936-37 SEASON WITH TWO VICTORIES

VAN LEEUWEN IN LIMELIGHT WORTHY SUCCESSOR TO MCGILCHRIST BENSON AGAIN IMPRESSES

THE Rugby Section of the Hong Kong Football Club opened their season at the Valley yesterday with a double victory, their first fifteen beating the Royal Navy by five tries (15 points) to two tries (6 points), while their "A" fifteen beat a strong Army "A" side by a dropped goal and a try (7 points) to nil.

The weather was a trifle hot for Rugby and all four sides felt the heat, the Navy more than anybody as this was their first run-about since the season commenced. The Club players were perhaps the fittest of all three teams competing.

There were no changes from the advertised teams in the senior game and although the Navy looked rather strong on paper, the Club were slightly the better side all-round. They have made several useful captures, one in particular, van Leeuwen, their right-wing three quarter, being a very difficult man to stop. He is very fast and has a fine swerve when going at top speed, and should make a worthy successor to McGillchrist.

Of the two full-backs on display, Cotman, of the Navy, was the better, but it was evident that he was sadly out of position and it would have made a world of difference if he had been playing scrum-half instead of Knox. Cotman's kicking and fielding was very impressive, while he was very elusive and extremely fast off the mark. Frost, the Club back, kicked well, but his fielding of the ball could have been better.

The Club had a very impressive three-quarter line on view, probably the best they have had for some years. Van Leeuwen, on the right-tackle combined well with Grievie, his centre-three-quarter, while in Chadwick, the Club have a sound left-wing three-quarter, who is as fast as van Leeuwen and whose passing and handling are sound. Bidwell played his usually good defensive game, his touch-kicking being his main asset, while he displayed his usual turn of speed.

Grievie Fumbles

Grievie was not seen at his best, fumbling several passes, although he made every effort to open up the play. Butcher, the Club fly-half, handled well, but was inclined to pass much too soon and should have drawn his man better. Bonnar made good use of the ball at the base of the scrum and sent his three away with some really good passes.

The Navy three-quarter line tackled very effectively and this was the outstanding feature of their game, although in Harvey, a centre three-quarter, they have a very fine player, one who is quick to see an opening and who does not hesitate to take full advantage of it. Mesnay, on the right-tackle, should have got rid of the ball much sooner than he did on several occasions, being repeatedly tackled in possession during the second half.

Good Hand-off

Benson, who is no newcomer to Colony Rugby, has lost none of his cunning, while his kicking was superb. He is one of the most dangerous centre-three-quarters in the Colony and made full use of a powerful hand-off which proved most effective against Bidwell and Pears.

Gordon, on the left-tackle, showed a fine turn of speed, but was not quite fast enough for van Leeuwen or Grievie, although he scored a fine try towards the end, taking a high pass from Harvey at top speed.

Euman, at stand-off-half, was a hard runner and was seen in several good movements, but he was most impressive in his tackling, repeatedly entangling Grievie in possession. Knox, at the base of the Navy scrum, was not at his best and seldom prevented Bonnar from sending the Club backs away.

Good Heeling

The Club pack was the better of the two and heeled the ball splendidly in the set-scums, although they were a trifle sluggish in the loose. Watson, one of the Club's newcomers, was outstanding, together with Munro, Coppin and Walkden, while Garrod was well to the fore in the loose and scored a good try as the result of following up.

The Navy, with practically a new pack, have not yet had time to settle down, although they throwing away several glorious

Brilliant Move

A brilliant move by Benson, who gathered the ball near the half-way mark and streaked for the corner, drawing the Club defence, resulted in a clever try when the latter, cross-kicked, for Harvey to gather and score a few yards wide of the posts, but Benson's kick failed to land the goal posts.

Just before the interval Bonnar sent Butcher away from a set-scrum and the latter drew Mesnay before sending Bidwell over in the corner for the Club's second try, Watson failing with the kick.

Soon after the resumption Bidwell broke away on the right, together with van Leeuwen and a nice pass saw the latter outstrip the Navy backs to score between the posts, but again Watson failed to add the points. Soon after the Club crossed the Navy's line for the fourth time when Bonnar sent Garrod over, but Watson failed with the kick for the third consecutive time.

The Navy backs, having recovered their "second wind," then got going in splendid fashion and Harvey broke through the centre to send a high pass over van Leeuwen's head to Gordon, who crossed the Club's line wide of the posts, Benson again failing to add the points. Just before the end the Club had everything their own way and Chadwick scored near the corner flag, Frost failing with the kick.

Fine Weather Favours Annual Yacht Club Event Hong Kong Electric Boat Sinks In Race For Hornell Cup

Favoured by good weather the opening of the season yachting and rowing regatta of the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club proved very successful yesterday, being attended by a large number of members and their lady-friends. The prizes won during the afternoon were distributed by Mrs. Sedgwick.

The only untoward incident was when the Hong Kong Electric boat sank when competing in the Hornell Cup race. The mishap occurred close to the shore and all five occupants gained dry land without difficulty.

Before asking Mrs. Sedgwick to present the prizes, Mr. H. S. Rouse, Commodore of the Club, expressed the gratification of many of the older members and himself that most of the active rowing and sailing members and boys of the Club were members of the Naval Volunteer Force, thus providing one more bond between the club and its many Naval subscribers.

Commodore's Speech

Mr. H. S. Rouse, Commodore of the Club, said:—"I must first record the Club's appreciation of Mrs. Sedgwick's graciousness in coming here from the Volunteer Gymkhana to present the prizes this afternoon."

scoring opportunities. Boyling, the Army back, was good, however, being sure in his handling, although his kicking lacked length.

Gillespie Shines

The Army had several newcomers in the pack, Dayrell, Culvert and Gibbons being well up with the ball in the loose, while Gillespie again shone.

Stewart, a newcomer to the Club, was impressive on the left tackle, while Desmond Hynes proved more than useful on the opposite wing, a fast turn of speed and a deadly tackle being his main assets. Henderson, another newcomer, as scrum-half, gave a plucky display and often sent his three away, but they did not make much progress except on several rare occasions.

The Club scored in the opening half through Lyle, who dropped a perfect goal after taking the ball from Henderson. Soon after the Club added their remaining points when Desmond Hynes crossed over wide of the posts, the converting kick failing. There was no further scoring in the second half, which was very scrappy.

Dr. J. A. R. Selby refereed and the teams were:—

Club "A" XV: Frost, Chadwick, Bidwell, Grievie, van Leeuwen, Butcher, Bonnar, Humphreys, Watson, Holden, Pears, Garrod, Coppin, Walkden and Munro.

Navy: Lt. Cotman (Bruce), L. S. A. Mesnay (Adventure), Lt. Harvey (Medway), Surg. Lt. Benson (Medway), (Captain), Sub. Lt. Gordon (Adventure), Lt. Euman (Medway), Lt. Knox (Medway), Lt. Robinson (Duchess), Lt. McKean (Delight), Lt. Cochran (Bruce), O. A. Dyer (Adventure), Lt. McBeath (Capetown), Lt. Hawkins (Medway), Mue. Mumford (Adventure), Lt. Magniac (Diamond).

CLUB JUNIORS WIN

A very scrappy game with few open movements preceded the main Rugby fixture of the afternoon and the Club "A" fifteen's win over the Army "A" by a dropped goal and a try (7 points) to nil came as no surprise on the run of the play.

The Club had several newcomers on view and of these the most impressive was Lyle, their fly-half, who dropped a perfect goal and whose defence played a great part in the Club win.

The Army made several positional changes, practically re-organizing their whole team, and this probably had something to do with the result of the game.

The Army forwards were much more impressive than their backs, who fumbled in their handling, although they throwing away several glorious

"Our visitor" and Ladies' day has been brought forward by about one month to enable us to carry through an ever increasing programme of events. Our fleet of racing craft and cruisers now exceed 60 and these provide a considerable field for employment of hands in the vessels themselves and to shipyards for their upkeep. It is a source of gratification to the older members of the Club that many of our active rowing and sailing members and the boys carried in our yachts are enrolled in the Naval Volunteer Force thus providing one more bond between this Club and its many Naval subscribers.

The amenities of the Club are not what they were, but I ask you to be patient for a little longer at the same time assuring you that the sub-committee, appointed at the Annual General meeting, working under that able Chairman, my friend the Vice-Commodore Mr. Cock, are examining all channels to pilot us to better moorings.

Interpret Hopes

"To-day's rowing has been confined to our own members but it is hoped to arrange an Interpret Regatta for December when we look forward to entertaining our neighbours from Canton and the Victoria Recreation Club.

The return of several units of his Majesty's Fleet enabled us to provide a race for whalers with the prospect of a good entry and on behalf of the Club I bid them welcome.

"I am glad to be able to report favourably on that friend of all sailors of the Club, Mr. G. G. Wood, for I understand he will be out of hospital in the next 10 days or so. He sends his love to all, especially the Ladies.

"The flag officers and members welcome all our visitors and trust they have enjoyed the afternoon's activities.

"I will now ask Mrs. Sedgwick to present the prizes."

Rowing Results

The following were the results of the rowing events:—

Hong Pairs for the Hornell Cup: 1. Way Fong (Messrs. P. D. M. Munro, F. H. King, I. H. Bradford, B. S. Carter and P. C. B. Black), 2. Taikeo, (M. S. Cumming, J. B. Colls, R. C. Harley, H. W. Scott and G. K. Oliver).

RIDING HONOURS FOR TROOPER GREGORY

VOLUNTEER GYMKHANA DRAWS BIG CROWD

LADY CALDECOTT PRESENTS PRIZES

THE Volunteer Mounted Machine Gun Troop annual gymkhana held on the Old Polo ground, Causeway Bay, yesterday, proved an unqualified success, both from the point of view of the high standard of riding, jumping, and test-pegging of the competitors in the various races, and the question of attendance.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, together with Lady Caldecott, attended by Capt. W. J. R. Cragg, A.D.C., were interested spectators during the afternoon and at the conclusion of the programme, Lady Caldecott distributed the trophies.

Trooper C. Gregory was the most successful competitor and carried off most of the prizes, including the Dowbiggin Trophy and the Bird Aggregate Cup, which he won for Sub-Section "B."

The children gave a very good account of themselves both in the riding and jumping events, though some of them looked too tiny to be able to manage their huge mounts!

Distinguished Gathering

Amongst those present were His Excellency the General Officer Commanding the Troops in China, Major-General A. W. Bartholomew, Col. H. C. Harrison, G.S.O.I., Sir Atholl and Lady MacGregor, Rear Admiral and Mrs. C. G. Sedgwick, Lt. Col. R. C. B. Anderson, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Carrington Sykes, Lt. Col. H. B. L. Dowbiggin, Mr. M. T. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Priestley, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Sleep and many others.

In asking Lady Caldecott to present the prizes, Capt. A. H. Potts said that his first duty was to thank His Excellency and Lady Caldecott for their kind attendance at the gymkhana and Lady Caldecott for so graciously consenting to give away the awards. He felt sure that they had all enjoyed the afternoon's sport and he wanted to congratulate the competitors on their fine display.

Capt. Potts went on to say that a special word of thanks must be given Quartermaster-Sergeant W. A. Mackinlay for the very efficient way in which he had organized the gymkhana; he did it all alone this year, and it was indeed a very praiseworthy effort.

Capt. Potts then called upon Lady Caldecott to give away the prizes to the following successful competitors:—

The Prize List

1. Obstacle Race: Trooper Gregory.
2. Musical Chairs: Mr. C. Spradbury.
3. Alarm Race (Challenge Cup and miniature presented by Capt. A. H. Potts): Sub-Section "A" (Tpr. D. Black, R. H. Cole, J. P. Murphy, A. R. H. Butcher and W. E. Grievie).
4. Tent-pegging: Capt. A. H. Potts (15 points), Tpr. C. L. Gregory (12 points), Tpr. J. S. Dimes (10 points).
5. Children's Riding Competition: (Under 7 years) Girls, Susan Dibley; Boys, Peter Potts.
6. Seven to 12 years: Girls, Pauline Powell; Boys, Alan Cutcher.
7. Over 12 years: Girls, Priscilla Losam; Boys, Pierre Jordan.
8. Best Dressed Boy: Alan Cutcher.
9. Best Dressed Girl: Wendy Anslow and Joan Macfayden (tie).

TENNIS ENTRIES GO ASTRAY

C.R.C. Grant Byes To Two Pairings

Two entries for the Colony Open Mixed Doubles Lawn Tennis Championship of the Colony, which were mislaid in the post and which consequently arrived at their destination after the draw had been made at the C.R.C. last Friday night, have been accepted by the Tennis Sub-Committee of the C.R.C. and will be included in the original draw as byes.

They are A.E.P. Guest and Miss M. Griffith, of the Kowloon Cricket Club, and a very strong pair, and A. L. Sullivan and Mrs. W. E. B. Dowling of the U.S.B.C., another very strong combination.

DEWAR GOLF TROPHY AT KOWLOON

The qualifying stages for the Dewar Golf Trophy, 18 holes medal play, will be held over the Kowloon City course this morning, the four best cards to qualify for the semi-final and final rounds, which will be decided on match play.

(From A Special Correspondent)

Canlon, Yesterday. As the situation in North China has become tense, it is definitely confirmed that General Han Fu-chu, the Chairman of the Shantung Provincial Government, arrived at Hangchow yesterday to interview Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek with regard to the national defence of North China. The interest of the Japanese authorities is at present focussed upon General Han's visit, for this shows that he is loyal to the Central Government and will not allow Shantung Province to be connected with the Hopei-Chahar Political Council.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had a very busy day on Thursday at Hangchow. In the morning he gave an interview to party and political officials, and in the afternoon he gave another interview to General Chang Fa-kwei, Garrison Commander of the Fukien-Chekiang-Kiangsi Frontiers bandit suppression corps.

PALESTINE RETURNS TO NORMAL

PAST COMPLETELY SUBMERGED

Jerusalem, Yesterday. The "armistice" declared by the military authorities after the termination of the strike expired yesterday, and it is anticipated that further defensive measures will be withdrawn, but the army's plans have not yet been divulged.

In the meantime Palestine has once more resumed its peaceful aspect. The crowds on the highways have revived the traffic problem and masons' mallets are resounding in Jerusalem, as workmen are diligently making up for lost time, while peasants are picking olives and grapes or attending harvest.

JEAN BATTEN'S FLIGHT

Dominions Secretary's Congratulations

London, Yesterday. The Dominions Secretary, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, has asked the Governor-General of New Zealand to convey a message of personal congratulation to Miss Jean Batten, who landed at Auckland at 5.35 a.m. G.M.T. yesterday after a solo flight of 1,200 miles across the Tasman Sea, which has never been flown by a woman before.

Miss Batten, who already holds many air records, has also thus completed the first solo flight from England to New Zealand, which she accomplished in just over 11 days. In the course of it she created a new record time of 5 days 21 hours 19 minutes for the solo flight from England to Port Darwin.—British Wireless Service.

Amid all these factors the past has been completely submerged, and the large army amid these peaceful scenes seems incongruous. The military lorries are now packed with soldiers going swimming or to play football instead of on patrol, and the soldiers' relations with the Arabs are now very friendly.

It is learned that the General Staff is now considering the possibility of continuing here the Sussex manoeuvres which were interrupted by the emergency call to Palestine.—Reuter.

Meanwhile the Soviet press clamours for immediate intervention, while it is reported from Oslo that a Norwegian steamer has been chartered to convey arms and munitions to Spain. The Norwegian Foreign Minister declared that Norway was loyally observing non-intervention, but had no legal right to intervene in the case of a Norwegian steamer's carrying arms on behalf of another country.

Conquer that Weakness! You can—with SANATOGEN

"There is abundant evidence of the value of Sanatogen as a restorative and food, and more particularly in cases of general debility".

—writes "The Lancet."

"A Great Strengthening", wrote the Hon. Sir F. A. Robertson, Judge of the Chief Court, Lahore, about Sanatogen.

Remember that these letters—and thousands similar—were written by people who, before the use of Sanatogen, were just as sceptical as you may be of its tonic effects. But they decided to try Sanatogen and they got back their health and vigour.

"Sanatogen"—as a well-known London physician puts it—"goes straight to the core of well-being, namely, the cells—and builds these up into a permanent and solid fabric of health."

Sanatogen will build up your Health lastingly. Over 25,000 physicians support this claim with their written commendation.

"Sanatogen gives a distinct restorative effect", writes Sir Luke White.

"My nurses and myself were very much struck with my rapid improvement with Sanatogen", writes the wife of a well-known doctor, Mrs. C. A. M. Phillips.

"A Wonder-worker" are the words in which Mr. Coulson Kernahan, the well-known author, describes Sanatogen.

Confucius, China's Great Sage

Some Glimpses Of An Old Master

Exponent Of A Rigid Code Of Honour

(By PHYLLIS JURY)

THE birthday of Confucius was celebrated this week: a day of importance to Chinese scholars and students; and even the man in the street sees in this great sage "A Master for Ten Thousand Generations," the one who has made the most profound and lasting impression on China's thought. A quiet ceremony is held in every school and a prayer of eulogy read: "On this month of the year we offer sacrifice to the philosopher K'ung, the ancient Teacher, the perfect Sage, and say, O Teacher, in virtue equal to heaven and earth, whose doctrines embrace the time past and the present, thou didst digest and transmit the six classics, and didst hand down lessons for all generations!"

Confucius was born into a troubled period, in 551 B.C., when the Chou dynasty was nearing its end. The barons, more powerful than their nominal sovereign, made war upon each other at the instigation of Ministers more crafty and ambitious than themselves. The suffering people were ground under heel, set to forced labour, driven to battles in which they had no interest and from which they derived no benefit. Men of learning, despairing of reform, withdrew from the world and became recluses among the mountains. Many of them poured scorn on Confucius for his futile attempts to stay the "disorder which, like a swelling flood, rolled in resistless torrent through the land."

Mind Set On Learning

We know very little for certain of the life of Confucius except that he taught in a small town, was born in Tsou in the state of Lu, of which his father was a governor, was orphaned at an early age, lived in poverty, went to court, travelled and came back to end his life in his native state. Near his tomb a small hamlet sprang up where relics are still kept: his cap, his guitar, his chariot.

He tells us himself that at fifteen his mind was set on learning. At nineteen he married, and his only son was born a year later. In his twenty-second year he began to teach, and however small the fee that was given he never refused his instructions. But, he said: "I do not open up the truth to one who is not eager to get knowledge, do not help out anyone who is not anxious to explain himself. When I have presented one corner of a subject to anyone and he cannot from it learn the other three, I do not repeat my lesson." He taught letters, ethics, devotion of soul and truthfulness, and encouraged his students to earnestness by saying: "Learn as if you could not reach your object, and were always fearing also lest you should lose it."

Charged With Mission

Confucius felt himself charged with a mission which he could have accomplished under the condition of becoming Minister to a prince and inspiring his policy. As it was, however, his career as statesman, hampered by conscience, was scarcely even moderately successful. He spent the greater part of his life in travelling from one overlordship to another, seeking for someone who would know how to use his talent. He proposed to all, to "conform to the rules of the Three Dynasties and to set again in a place of honour the policy of Duke Chu," who had established that virtue which he (Confucius) wished to restore. He thought that if he found a prince "capable of making use of him, at the end of a cycle of twelve months some result, and at the end of three years perfection, would be achieved." The confidence of Confucius in his vocation was absolute; even in his worst moments he could not make up his mind that his wisdom was insufficient. "When," he said, "one has fully achieved wisdom, if one remains without employment, the shame is on the head of the nobles." But the princes of the day saw in him little more than a pedantic philosopher with notions impossible of realisation.

There was a time, however, when, to quote Hirth: "To Confucius' management of affairs in the state of Lu was ascribed a rise in the ruling duke's political power that the latter's neighbours, especially the Duke of Ts'i, became jealous of this successful government, which threatened to raise Lu to a certain leadership among the Confederate States. An old trick was resorted to as a means to divert Duke Ting's interest from excellence in government to things of a more lowly nature. Eighty beautiful girls and one hundred and twenty-five fine horses were offered to him as a gift from Ts'i and, to the great disgust of the sage, they were accepted. From this time onward Confucius lost his influence over the duke, and gradually, though without an open rupture, he again withdrew into private life. He could not bear to live in his homeland, but wandered about for fourteen years in voluntary exile. The Analects simply relate: 'The people of Ts'i sent to Lu a present of female musicians, which Duke Ting received, and for three days no court was held. Confucius took his departure.'

Host Of Disciples

But all this time Confucius was gathering about him a host of disciples by whom he was greatly loved. On their travels one of them had fallen behind, and on again joining the group Confucius said to him: "I thought you had died." The disciple replied: "While you were alive, how should I presume to die?" Many of the disciples were among the ablest men in China of their time, "superior men," and yet with them originated the practice of speaking of Confucius as "the greatest man that had ever lived," "like the phoenix among birds, the Tai mountain among mounds and ant-hills, and rivers and seas compared with rain-pools"—men who were eventually to write down all their master had said and done and begin the pen which has since resounded through all the intervening generations.

The state of Lu was famous for its music, but still Confucius was able to improve upon it. "The Master said: 'I returned from Wei to Lu, and the music was reformed, and the pieces and the imperial songs and praise found all their proper place.' He loved music, saying: 'If a man be without the virtues proper to humanity, what has he to do with music?' And again: 'It is by the Odes that the mind is aroused. It is by the Rules of Propriety that the character is established. It is from music that the finish is received.'

His power of self-control was admirable; he was the exponent of a rigid and estimable code of honour. It is doubtful whether he meant to give more importance to ceremonialism or to human-heartedness. His extraordinary fondness for rituals and ceremonies caused his biographers to record that "in his childhood Confucius used to play with the sacrificial bowls and dishes, which he arranged with due formalities."

A book of the Analects is devoted to a minute description of the Master's every manner and behaviour on different occasions, as if he were the living embodiment of all that was proper in life. His habits, perhaps, his character, may be summed up in one sentence of this book, "If his mat were not straight he would not sit on it."

Mild Yet Dignified

It was said of him, "The Master was mild and yet dignified; majestic and yet not fierce; respectful and yet easy." He was an ardent advocate of ceremonialism not only for its outward expression, but for its morally edifying effects on character. He made the feeling of fellowship the prime principle on which the grand edifice of human society is built. He taught that the ching or kung was the road that finally led to the perfection of humanism and to the full development of fellow-feeling. Etymologically, kung is composed of "heart" and "many hands," "Many hands" meaning "together." Ching is composed of "mindfulness" and "gentle tapping" and means self-restraint, self-respect, gravity or dignity. The two words are generally used together to make the meaning more complete. Separately, kung signifies more the outward deportment and ching the inner feeling. When feeling is carefully nourished and purified within and the outward manners deliberately adjusted, the egoistic impulse is gradually subdued and the altruistic one proportionately strengthened, until the two become thoroughly harmonised.

But Confucius did not consider himself bound by the rituals. On one occasion a rebel invited him to visit him and the Master was inclined to go. One of his disciples rebuked him these words: "Master, formerly I have heard you say, 'When a man in his own person is guilty of doing evil, a superior man will not associate with him.'" Confucius answered: "Yes, I did use those words. But is it not said that, if a thing be really hard, it may be ground without being made thin? Is it not said that, if a thing be really white, it may be steeped in a dark fluid without being made black?" The Master's doctrine seems to have been one of action: in speaking of the superior man he said:

MOTOR TOUR IN AFRICA

Gruelling Test On Expedition

Remarkable evidence of the ability of modern cars to operate under conditions which appear prohibitive to ordinary forms of transport was provided during Sir Malcolm Hailey's African Research Expedition, which recently returned to England after a journey almost the length of the African continent.

Transport for the expedition was provided by two Ford V-8's, one a saloon and the other a van. From the starting point in South Africa to London the vehicles covered 25,000 miles each, often over appalling country.

Starting from Durban the expedition travelled through Equatorial Africa to Dakar on the French West African Coast. The route then lay through French Sudan to Timbuctoo, and thence across the Sahara, the coast being finally reached at Oran, Northern Algeria. The members of the expedition returned to London with the cars, shipping them across the Mediterranean and driving across France.

"He acts before he speaks and afterwards speaks according to his actions." His advice was often contradictory, to suit the individual or the circumstance. Of one man he said: "Ch'iu is retiring and slow; therefore, I urged him forward." Of another: "Yu has more than his own share of energy; therefore, I kept him back."

Loved The Studious

Confucius believed the real teaching was not done with the help of words. "I would prefer not to speak," he said on one occasion. "If you, Master, do not speak, what shall we, your disciples have to record?" The Master said: "Does Heaven speak? The four seasons pursue their courses, and all things are continually being produced, but does Heaven say anything?" He loved the studious. "Men are not different," he said, "by their natural aptitude, but by the culture they have acquired. There are only the wise of the highest class, and the stupid of the lowest class who cannot be changed." He could not understand those who were "ardent and yet not upright; stupid and yet not attentive; simple and yet not sincere."

"I should like, sir, to hear your wishes," said one of the disciples. The Master said: "They are, in regard to the aged, to give them rest; in regard to friends, to show them sincerity; in regard to the young, to treat them tenderly." And the Master had his lighter moods. On one occasion, one of the princelings through whose territory Confucius and his disciples passed, and who had never seen the Master, asked a disciple to describe him. The disciple did not venture to reply; but when Confucius heard of the circumstance, he said to him: "Why did you not say that I am simply a man who in his eager pursuit of knowledge forgets his food, who in the joy of its attainment forgets his sorrows, and who does not perceive that old age is coming on?"

When on the point of dying, the disciples of Confucius wanted to worship. "For a long time I have said my prayer," said Confucius.

NEW YORK

don't think she'd marry you, I hope, and go through what I went through when we thought you were going to be ordered overseas? You don't suppose that when she's back in New York, a city slicker like her, she'll moon over a man from Hendersonville? You're good enough to amuse her in the country, but back among her own kind, you'll be just another story to tell the next man." ("A woman's love-life is a serial story, each new installment accompanied by a synopsis of what has gone before.") "How she killed time in the country by seducing a hick!" She rose, trembling.

"I'm only telling you this," she said, frigid again, "because you're just fool enough to take her seriously. I don't care; I'm through. I'm going away in the car." He tried to speak; her rising voice drowned him. "No, I'm not going home, Burl. I'm going where you'll never find me!"

She walked past him, ostentatiously flicking her skirt aside so as not to touch him; the screen door banged behind her; he heard her starting the car. He could guess that if he ran out, seized her, forcibly kept her here, they would ultimately patch this up somehow; almost he was tempted to do that. But Frieda—He heard the car roll away... She hadn't had a suit-case; perhaps she had packed it already, put it in the car. That was all talk, about going where he couldn't find her; she might not go home, but she'd probably go back to her sister's, where she had been this past week, and wait for him to come crawling to her.

"And now," he recognized, "I've got to make up my mind." He sat there, he had no idea how long; and when he got up, the man whom he dodged and hesitated and hoped for an impossible hundred per cent. was gone, replaced by the Burlington Parry who was to make history. He went out, down the path along the lake, past the hotel veranda; it was empty at this hour, but he wouldn't have cared if all the old hens had been there to see him going to the woman he wanted. He had got past all that. He stumbled up Frieda's steps in the darkness, knocked at her door.

"What is it?" she called instantly. (So she couldn't sleep, either!) Through the screen he saw her dimly in the dark interior. "You!" she said. "You can't come in! At this time of night? And I'm in my nightgown... Yes, I know that's a joke; but if anybody saw you talking about, anyway." "Iris has gone—she's broken in." "Iris has gone—she's broken in. I imagine you're right. I didn't tell her: I didn't want to hurt her. I didn't say a word, but I hurt her like hell—hurt myself, too. But that had to happen; she and I are through. I'm going to New York to see what I'm good for. If you'll take a chance on me—"

"Oh, darling! If you're sure you want me!" he warned her as she moved toward him. "I'll probably always be sorry about Iris. She'll make herself a life that suits her, without me; still, I may never be able to give you a hundred per cent. Certainly I can't just now. If you're afraid of that, afraid I might fall for some other woman in New York, we'll wait till I can show you that you're wrong. But if you'll go with me tomorrow, marry me as soon as she divorces me—"

A clinger cut him off—so unexpected and startling, so loud in the silence, that it took them a moment to recognize the telephone bell. "Somebody must have seen you!" she gasped. "Slip out—I won't answer it. I'll go with you tomorrow—"

"Answer it," he commanded. "We've got past all that." She fumbled in the dark. "Turn on the light," he told her. "Who cares, now?"

Fier rose-clad figure came to life in the shaded glow; she picked up the telephone, managed to say something in a throaty quaver.

"Miss Narrette?" came a man's voice. "This is the manager of the hotel. Sorry to disturb you so late, but I wonder if by any chance you know where we could find Mr. Parry. I've called his cottage, and he doesn't answer."

"Just a moment," she said, turning. "It's for you, Burl." She watched him as he listened, saw his tall figure stiffen, grow unendurably tense. At last he spoke, hung up, turned to her, his face drained white.

"There's been an accident," he said—mechanically, as if repeating something learned by heart. "Yes—Frieda. Her car went off the road just this side of Piel's Corners. Crashed into a tree... Yes—she was killed."

He paused; then, preplexity arriving while horror was still on the way: "I—I can't understand it," he said. "That side of Piel's Corners—that's a straight road, and she's a wonderful driver in the car—going where I couldn't find her—"

"No!" she cried. "Don't say it, Burl! Never let yourself believe it! Anything might have happened; a car could have crowded her off the road; head-lamps could have dazzled her—"

But she knew as she looked at him, that what she was saying was the thing he would never be quite able to believe, no matter how hard he tried—that someday after, if he looked at Frieda Narrette, he would see a woman on whose account his wife had killed herself.

The United States Senate convened on the stroke of noon, and

A Natural Squeeze

SOME squeezes are carefully planned, and depend for their success on some such spectacular preliminary as a Vienna Coup. Others, however, develop so naturally in the ordinary course of events that, after other methods fail, there they are, staring declarer in the face. In to-day's hand South had two possible methods of fulfilling his contract, but it was unnecessary up to the eighth trick for him to make any choice between them, and by that time it was so obvious which one had any chance of success that his selection was like that of a starving man concerning whether or not to accept sustenance.

having been duly prayed for, gave its attention to the first business of the day, the swearing in of the new Senator from Illinois. The Press Gallery was full, for a good many reporters hadn't seen him yet, and wanted a look at the man on whom so many hopes were being built. George Diehl of the Capital City Times was in the front row—this was a big story, for him; and a woman settled down in the vacant seat beside him—a faded blonde who worked for a feature syndicate.

"Done a personality story on Burl Parry yet?" Diehl whispered. She shook her head. "He's worth it," she told her. "If he doesn't go to the White House some day, they'll write books about why he didn't."

"Senator Parry? No... I suppose you've known him for years?"

"Sure. I knew him when he was still living down at Hendersonville."

He was coming down the aisle, on the arm of her senior colleague, tall, grimly intense, with wavy gray hair. "He looks older," thought the faded blonde. "So do I, no doubt."

Then he glanced up at a tall dark woman in the Senators' gallery, and looked young again as his face lit up with a quick flashing smile.

The faded blonde stiffened, fighting down a convulsive shudder. Even yet, after fifteen years, and three other men—

"His wife?" she managed to ask. George Diehl nodded.

"Damn! bright woman," he said in an undertone. "She's done a lot for Burl... Yes, I know her well. Knew his first wife too—Iris. She was all right, but he'd never have got very far with her; she couldn't see past the corporation line of Hendersonville. But she was killed in an automobile accident, and then he moved to Capital City; and a couple of years afterward he married his secretary, and she turned out to be just what he needed."

"Did she?" said the faded blonde. "I hope she needed him too."

"Huh? Oh, I guess so; they got along fine. Lola's proud of him. I don't know that she's what you'd call crazy about him; but she was smart enough to see that he was going somewhere, and she's always taken care to go along. Funny thing; she looks a lot like Iris. I've always thought that was why he was attracted to her, at first; but he couldn't do without her, now."

"I could howl," thought the faded blonde. "I could howl!" But they don't let you howl in the Senate Press Gallery.

SINO-JAPANESE ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

Air Traffic Agreement

Peiping, Yesterday. — The first fruits of Sino-Japanese economic co-operation in North China materialised when an agreement, in principle, was reached for through air traffic between North China and Manchuria.

A special company, called the Hui Tung Company, is being organised to handle the air traffic which will be run in accordance with the Chinese Civil Aviation Law.—Reuter.

BIG DEMAND FOR BRITISH CARS

Motor Show At Olympia

London, Yesterday.

The Duke of Kent paid an unofficial visit to the Motor Show at Olympia yesterday and spent more than an hour among the vast crowds which, judging by the volume of orders received by the manufacturers, must this year contain a higher proportion of buyers both from Home and overseas than ever before.

One firm has already taken orders estimated at £120,000 and overseas enquiries have been such a feature of the show that the staff of interpreters has had to be increased.—British Wireless Service.

DICTATORSHIP FOR BELGIUM?

BLUM'S UNUSUAL STEP

Paris: Premier Blum took the unusual step to-day of convening all Ministers and Secretaries of State who belong to the Socialist party in order to discuss with them the situation resulting from the Belgian Government's declaration. Political circles point out that this is the first time that the Socialist members of the Government have been summoned to confer separately with the Premier.

It is pointed out that after M. Blum had given an explanation regarding the present European situation, the conference considered the possibility of re-examining and revising the relations between the French and Belgian Socialist parties.—Trans-Ocean Service.

INTERVENTION IN SPAIN

M. Lenin's book suggests three ways towards the bolshevisation of the whole world. Firstly, through colonial and semi-colonial peoples (what Lenin really meant was China); secondly, through the most highly industrialised country of the world (Germany); and thirdly, through Spain, whose social and economic structure and level of culture most closely resembled that of the pre-revolutionary Russia.

After having failed to achieve any substantial successes in China, and after the Third Reich had become an arch antagonist of communism, the way through Spain is the only one still open.

That is why, the paper concludes, the possibility of intervention in Spain is very real. Even if Madrid is beyond rescue, there is still the strongly industrialised Catalonia which has a common frontier with France. Russian intervention would thus, in practice, mean that Catalonia would become a Communist basis for the

M.C.C. 469 FOR 4

327 AHEAD AT PERTH

Wyatt And Hammond In Big Stand

HARDSTAFF 87 NOT OUT

Perth, Yesterday. The touring M.C.C. team commenced their heavy fixture list in a manner which is a happy augury for the Tests, running up a total of 469 runs for the loss of only four wickets at the close of the second day's play in their match with Western Australia.

R. E. S. Wyatt, the former England captain, who was chosen at the last moment to fill the vacancy caused by E. R. T. Holmes' inability to make the trip, and Wally Hammond, who did not strike his true form during the English season until very late, both distinguished themselves by topping the three-figure mark. Wyatt scoring 108 and Hammond collecting 141. Hardstaff, the young Nottingham batsman, is only 13 short of the century mark, being 87 not out at the close of play. After dismissing the home team for 142 runs, the M.C.C. tourists had scored 91 for 1 when stumps were drawn on Friday.

RAPID SCORING

Play was resumed this morning before a crowd of 5,000 spectators, the weather being cool and cloudy and the wicket, easy. Wyatt and Hammond continued their innings and after play had been in progress for nine minutes the 100 was signalled. An idea of how rapidly the runs came may be gained from the following: 200 runs in 185 minutes; 300 in 257 minutes, and 400 in 348 minutes.

Wyatt played a very dour innings, but he was the more confident of the two. His 108 took him 282 minutes, in the course of which he hit only five boundaries! Hammond treated the spectators to a sparkling display of strokes which won him rounds of applause. He hit two sixes and 14 boundaries and was at the wicket for three hours for his 141 runs. His innings, however, was not flawless—he had a "life" at 81 and another at 129. Together with Wyatt he put on 221 runs for the second wicket. The score at the tea interval was 328 for 3.

FISHLOCK UNSETTLED

Fishlock, the young Surrey left-handed batsman, of whom so much is expected, appeared to be unsettled during his innings for 30 runs. Hardstaff, on the other hand, played delightfully free cricket to score 87 not out. His driving and wrist work were features of his innings. He reached his 50 after 96 minutes. Worthington, the Derby all-rounder, is the other not out, his 39 runs not out being described as a workmanlike effort.

Scores, as cabled by Reuter, were as follows:
W. Australia: 142 (Wilberforce 33 not out, Newman 28, G. O. Allen 3 for 32, K. Farnes 3 for 35).
M.C.C.: 469 for 4 (Barnett 54, R. E. S. Wyatt 108, Hammond 141, Fishlock 30, Hardstaff 87 not out, Worthington 39 not out).

WEATHER REPORT

The anti-cyclone over China has increased considerably in intensity. Pressure remains relatively low over the Pacific to the east of Luzon, and a V-shaped depression is moving eastward over northern Japan. The local forecast for to-morrow, as issued by the Royal Observatory last night, is north-east winds, moderate to fresh; fine.

Every detail was completed for Baroness Eva von Blixen-Finecke and Kurt Bjorkvall, noted Swedish aviator, to hop from Roosevelt Field, New York, on a non-stop flight to Stockholm, Sweden. But in the end Bjorkvall hopped off without her in the Bellanca monoplane shown above.

WALES BEAT ENGLAND BY ODD GOAL

IRELAND TOO GOOD FOR GERMANY

Cardiff, Yesterday. — A crowd of 45,000 saw Wales beat England by 2 goals to 1 in their Association football match here to-day.

The weather was threatening when Wales won the toss, but the English forwards soon showed that they could combine better, drawing their opponents in masterly style. Play, however, was very even.

The Welsh players lacked their opponents' finesse, but they showed plenty of pace and resolution. Barker rarely wandered away from Glover, which is a reversal of his usual policy, and seemed intent on stiffening up the new England defenders—Griffiths stayed well behind with the backs and Steele began to wander when he realised that he had been mastered.

Play was below expectations and the interval arrived with England leading by a goal scored by Bastin.

CORNER KICK EQUALISER

Both teams resumed in very lively fashion. Morris being outstanding in a series of fierce Welsh attacks, while Holcroft emerged with flying colours after a 10-minute bombardment.

Persistence eventually rewarded Morris, whose curling corner kick found its way into the net for the equaliser in the 19th minute.

Wales redoubled their efforts and Sproston, Catlin and Barker had a hectic period running about, and were glad to kick at random. Glover headed in from Hopkins' centre to give Wales their last goal. England's belated attack lacked fire and the side was well beaten.—Reuter.

The teams were:—

England: H. Holdcroft (Preston); B. Sproston (Leeds) and A. E. Catlin (Wednesday); T. Smalley (Wolves); J. Barker (Derby), and E. Keen (Derby); S. Crooks (Derby), W. Scott (Brentford), F. C. Steele (Stoke), R. W. Westwood (Bolton), W. and C. S. Bastin (Aston).

Wales: Gray (Chester); Turner (Charlton); Robert John (Aston); Warner (Swansea), Griffiths (Aston Villa), Richards (Brentford); Hopkins (Brentford); Bryn Jones (Wolves), Glover (Grimsby), Leslie Jones (Coventry) and Morris (Birmingham).—Reuter.

Scotland won the International soccer series last season with 4 points, while England and Wales shared second place with 3. Ireland securing only 2 points.

In the last encounter between England and Wales, played on the Wolves' ground, on February 5, last year, the latter were victorious by the odd goal in three.

In the whole series of matches between the two countries England have won 85, Wales 9 and ten have been drawn.

IRELAND BEAT GERMANY

Dublin, Yesterday.

A crowd of 30,000 saw Ireland beat Germany by 5 goals to 2 in their Association football encounter here to-day.

The weather was fine and the Band played the German and Irish National Anthems, while the German spectators gave the Nazi salute.

The teams were:—
Irish: Free State: Foley; O'Neill and Gorman; O'Reilly, Turner and Connolly; Ellis, Donnelly, Davis, Moore and Goghehan.
Germany: Jakob; Muezenberg and Munkert; Rodzinski, Foldbrunner and Kitzinger; Lebner, Siffing, Hohmann, Szepan and Kobierski.

Germany won the toss and play was extremely fast during the opening exchanges. The Germans were slightly superior in the attack, Szepan playing a roving game and proving to be a great schemer. The Irish defence were given several anxious moments before Donnelly scored in the 28th minute following a breakaway.

Germany then retaliated and Kobierski equalised a minute later.

Almost immediately afterwards Szepan gave the visitors the lead. In the 80th minute, but Davis equalised a minute later, from a penalty, and the interval arrived with the teams sharing four goals.

GERMANS COLLAPSE
Ireland opened strongly after the interval and their forceful tactics completely non-plussed the Germans, whose full-backs had a tough job keeping out the invaders.

The game had now developed into a battle between the dashing Irish forwards and the German backs, who strove manfully to stem the tide.
Jakob brought off a couple of magnificent saves before Goghehan scored from close range in the 14th minute. Donnelly increased the lead following a strong attack, and Davis netted the fifth.—Reuter.
